Mediators Meet With Moroccan, Algerian Chiefs

BAMAKO, Mali (AP)—A conference aimed at settling the Algerian-Morocco border war began Tuesday with Mali President Modibo Keita and Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie acting as mediators.

Keita and Selassie met separately with Algerian President Ahmed Ben Bella and King Hassan II of Morocco. Ben Bella and King Hassan did not meet face to face. Keita and Selassie met them privately in separate apartments in the white presidential palace.

A Mali government spokesman said he was "fully optimistic" that the talks would end the border clashes and bring peace to the troubled Algerian-Morocco border.

Matter Of Protocol

A spokesman for the Algerian delegation said the main problem of getting Ben Bella and King Hassan together was one of protocol. He said the two camps oculd not agree on exactly how the two leaders would meet face-to-face.

Ben Bella and King Hassan were quartered in apartments on the same floor of the palace. Each had an apartment at opposite end of a long corridor. The Ethiopian emperor also had an apartment on the same floor.

The conference gave the usually sleepy capital a festive air.

The four leaders will seek to achieve at least a cease-fire in the two-week-old conflict in which Algerian and Moroccan armed forces have been fighting for disputed mineral-rich areas along the undefined border of southeastern Morocco and southwestern Algeria.

Diplomats Hope For Truce

Western diplomats in North Africa expressed doubt the conference would settle the border dispute but said they hoped it could work out a cease-fire.

The diplomats have expressed fear the conflict might blossom into an East-West issue because of reports that the Algerians had received Soviet tanks and jet fighters shipped from Cuba.

Africans, too, were hoping for a successful conference. The talks represent a major test for the principle of African unity, adopted May 1 at the conference of African nations in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia.

Failure of the meeting would represent a serious blow to the Organization of African Unity, which was organized at the Addis Ababa meeting.

Menjou, Screen Model Of Suave Gentleman, Dies

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Adolphe Menjou, whose trim mustache and continental tailoring made him the screen's symbol of a suave gentleman, died of chronic hepatitis Tuesday at his Beverly Hills home. He was 73.

His third wife, former actress Veree Teasdale, and his adopted son, Peter, 27, were at his bedside. He had been ailing for years and in bed nine months.

His career — one of the longest in films — spanned half a century. He made his first movie in New York in 1912 and came West to pioneer the industry in Hollywood. He appeared in more than 200 films. In recent years he had been active in television.

Menjou, born in Pittsburgh, Pa., and educated in the United States, was Hollywood's model of the debonair European. He once told an interviewer he'd planned it that way.

"In the early days everyone was typed," he said. "Bill Hart was the big, Western he-man. I couldn't compete against him. Rudolf Valentino was the handsome sheik. The only type left that I could fill was the debonair habitue of the drawing rooms."

Menjou began to live the image. When they went out of style, he decried the passing of knickers and spats. His politics were strongly conservative.

He spoke out against left-wing tendencies wherever he believed them to be.

In 1947, he testified at a closed hearing of the House Committee on Un-American Activities and told newsmen afterward: "The Communist movement here is serious—with many millionaires in Hollywood and elsewhere supporting it. The Communist party, dominated by the 16 men who control the police state of Russia, is trying to soften up the United States, and if not stopped can destroy this country in 15 years."

House Group Backs JCS Tenure Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Armed Services Committee, undeterred by the opposition of the White House, approved 22-8 Tuesday a bill setting a single four-year term for members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The approval overrode a warning from Rep. Samuel Stratton, D-N.Y., that it is "a bad bill, a hasty bill, and a dangerous bill."

VICTIM AND SUSPECT — Mrs. Fred Turner (top), wife of a multimillionaire oilman, was beaten to death at her Midland, Tex., home yesterday by a burglar. Held in the slaying is James L. Marion (bottom), 22-year-old Negro shown as he was being booked at the Midland police station. (AP Photofax)

Negro Burglar Slays Wealthy Oilman's Wife

MIDLAND, Tex. (AP) — A burglar beat Mrs. Fred Turner, wife of one of the Southwest's wealthiest oilmen, to death Tuesday while she fought for her life and her diamonds. Police said a Negro youth admitted the slaying.

Police found the man, James L. Marion, 22, cowering in an attic two blocks away. Capt. Roger Robbins said Marion admitted the killing.

The man apparently had remained in the house several hours after killing Mrs. Turner. She was in her early 60s.

While the sheriff and several others were upstairs discovering the body, Marion appeared in the library downstairs and slashed Mrs. Turner's daughter over the right eye with a pistol. Then he held the sheriff at gunpoint while he backed out the front door and fled.

Mrs. Turner's face was so badly beaten she was almost unrecognizable.

A report of a woman's scream for help followed by a gunshot led officers to report at first she had been shot.

Turner is best known nationally as the owner of Tomy Lee, 1959 winner of the Kentucky Derby.

But he is known in oil circles for one of the great finacial coups of the oil fields.

In 1927, he found a strip of land in the Yates oil field in Pecos County, Tex., to which no one owned title although it was producing oil in great quantities.

He filed suit that year claiming the land under Texas law and in 1933 won a final decision

Sen. Williams Tells Of Baker Investigation

One-Man Prober Turns Evidence Over To Inquiry

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., opened the Senate's investigation Tuesday of its former majority secretary, Robert G. Baker, with documents and sworn testimony on what he has learned of the former page boy's financial dealings.

Baker, 35, resigned Oct. 7.

Williams, as he left the closed session of the Senate Rules Committee which is conducting the probe, would not disclose what information he had presented from his own one-man investigation.

Chairman Briefs Reporter

But Chairman B. Everett Jordan, D-N.C., told reporters that:

—Williams, the lead-off witness, dealt with Baker's financial dealings "and other people that might be involved in that area."

—Williams turned over some documentary evidence that will have to be verified, but did not present any affidavits.

—He did not bring up a beautiful German woman, Elly Rometsch, 27, who was whisked back to Germany after reportedly boasting of amorous affairs with Washington figures. One unconfirmed rumor is that members of Baker's circle were on good terms with her.

—The committee would consider having her testify. Baker will testify.

Staff May Probe Staff

—The committee will meet Friday to determine whether to employ outside counsel and staff not connected with the legislative branch. Jordan said the inquiry may cover the entire Senate staff, giving rise to the propriety of a probe in which "staff would investigate staff."

—Both the Justice Department and the comptroller general have been asked to provide whatever information they have relating tot he Baker case.

Baker quit under fire after allegations were made that he used pressure to induce big defense contractors to install in their plants vending machines leased from a firm in which he had a financial interest. Baker has denied any such tactics.

Miners' Rescue Today Possible

BROISTEDT, Germany (AP) —Officials brought the biggest and fastest boring rig in West Germany here Tuesday to speed the rescue of three men trapped in a flooded iron mine since Thursday night. Rescuers are hoping to bring the men to the surface sometime Wednesday.

The men are in a gallery 259 feet below the surface.

Plans have been made to bring the men into a decompression chamber once they get to the surface. Their bodies will have to get used to normal pressure again after being subjected to high pressure for more than 130 hours.

Mine Director Rudolph Stein said most of the rescue shaft will be lined with a tube and the top sealed with an air lock so that a breakthrough will not reduce air pressure which would bring up the water level and possibly drown the men.

They are in an airpocket left when the mine was flooded after a nearby dam burst. Eighty-six miners escaped; 40 others are unaccounted for and believed dead.

Gen. Collins Chosen To Head Red Cross

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Red Cross announced Tuesday the selection of Gen. James Francis Collins as its next president and chief executive officer.

Collins, now commander in chief of the Army in the Pacific, will assume the $30,000-a-year post next April 1, succeeding Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther who is retiring after more than seven years as head of the national organization.

E. Roland Harriman, chairman of the Red Cross, said Collins was the unanimous choice of the board of governors at a closed meeting Monday.

Gruenther will be 65 next March and Red Cross rules require retirement at that age.

Barry Declares U.S. Freedom Is Endangered

CONCORD, N.H. (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater said Tuesday night that tyranny could creep up on the United States wearing "the mask of political efficiency."

In this guise, he said, it would be "righteously demanding the perfection of its programs and recklessly spending the freedom of its citizens to pay for it."

Goldwater, in a visit to the state that will be the first major battleground of the struggle for next year's Republican presidential nomination, said the federal system and the power of Congress are basic safeguards of American freedom. And he said they are eroding away.

The Arizona Republican said state governments and Congress "stand together on one side of the battle line" with the executive branch and the Supreme Court usually aligned on the opposite side.

He said the court's decisions show "it has no disposition whatsoever to support the states or the Congress against the executive."

Goldwater told an airport news conference: "If I decide to seek the nomination, I will enter the New Hampshire primary and campaign actively in the state."

He said the latest date for his decision would be Jan. 27, deadline for filing for the Illinois primary.

Goldwater's speech was prepared for a $10-a-plate dinner to raise funds for a chair of government honoring the late Sen. Styles Bridges at New England College in Henniker, N.H.

Goldwater praised Bridges, a conservative Republican from New Hampshire who died in 1961, as a man who fought those who see in government "an opportunity to rule, regulate or regiment."

Goldwater's visit came just 11 days after a quick New Hampshire speaking tour by New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller —who said the Arizona senator has taken foreign policy stands which are not in the best interests of the American people.

Senate Will Run Into '64 Session

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield announced Tuesday the 1963 Senate session will run until the opening of the 1964 meeting on Jan. 3 — but with 22 days of holiday recess during that period.

The Montana Democrat told Senate GOP Leader Everett M. Dirksen and fellow colleagues that the Senate will recess over Veterans Day, Thanksgiving and Christmas on this schedule:

Thanksgiving — Recess from Nov. 27 to Nov. 29, with a "pro forma" meeting that day and another recess until Dec. 3.

Christmas — Recess on a "no business" basis from Dec. 20 to Jan. 2, meeting again on Jan. 3 with a one-minute noon adjournment to mark the opening of the 88th Congress' second session.

Engineer Seized On Spy Charges

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI announced the arrest Tuesday night of a New Jersey electrical engineer on charges of passing classified defense contract information to members of the Soviet delegation to the United Nations.

Arrested by the FBI in Englewood, N. J., was John William Butenko, 38, described as a control administrator in the field operations division of the International Electric Corp., Paramus, N. J.

Also arrested was Igor A. Ivanov, 33, a Russian citizen without diplomatic immunity who acts as a chauffeur for the Soviet trade organization, Amtorg, in New York City. Two members of the Soviet U. N. delegation are being detained, the FBI said.

U.N. To Expand Viet Nam Probe

SAIGON, VIET NAM (AP)—A U.N. investigation of South Viet Nam's political-religious crisis is expanding Wednesday to Hue, where 11 persons were killed in the first violence May 8 during a Buddhist demonstration.

Abdul Rahman Pazhwak of Afghanistan, chairman of the fact-finding mission, announced three of its seven members will make the trip to Hue, a coastal city 400 miles north of Saigon, for a 24-hour study. They will return Thursday.

The others will contine interviews in Saigon.

The investigators Tuesday visited a villa on the outskirts of Saigon being used as a detention center for persons rounded up in the military crackdown on Buddhist foes of President Ngo Dinh Diem's government.

Police barred newsmen, but an informant said the U.N. representatives interviewed a half dozen or so Buddhists, including some monks.

Fourth Straight Son Born On Same Date

CONESBORO, Ark. (AP) — Mrs. Twila Steed made it four in a row Sunday—she gave birth to her fourth straight son on the same date, Oct. 27.

Mrs. Steed, 32, and her husband, Billy, 42, who operate a motel at Leachville, Ark., said they planned it that way.

They had given a birthday party for their other three sons, Mark, 9, Philip, 7, and Stephen, 4, on Saturday before the birth Sunday of Jonathan Daniel.

Dr. Grover Poole, who delivered all four boys, said the births were normal and no drugs were used to slow or speed birth.

"I love my boys but I'd like to have just one girl," Mrs. Steed said. "We may have to break up the birth dates to break up the string of boys."

The Steeds said they want six children.

Steed said they planned the first child for Oct. 27 because it is Navy Day and he was a meteorologist in the Navy in World War II.

Slug Or Shove, Texans Debate House Run-In

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Ed Foreman, R-Tex., told the House Tuesday that Rep. Henry Gonzalez, D-Tex., slugged him in a fit of anger triggered by Foreman's criticism of his voting record.

Gonzalez denied it. "I didn't hit the guy," he said. "If I had hit him he would have stayed hit." Gonzalez said he only "shoved Foreman a little."

Not so said Foreman. "Gonzalez doubled up his right fist and hit me in the shoulder."

The two Texans agreed on only one thing: It was Gonzalez' voting record that touched off the argument.

Foreman said he had discussed Gonzalez' record last weekend in a Houston speech before the Texas Federation of Republican Women.

Gonzalez said there was more to it than that. He said he had heard that Foreman called him a Communist, and "those are fighting words."

Gonzalez said when heasked Foreman on the House floor if the report was true "he gave me a smart aleck reply."

What happened next depends on who does the talking.

Foreman said he told Gonzalez he did not label him a Communist. According to Foreman, Gonzalez' answer to this was that he would pistol whip him if he had.

Foreman said he told Gonzalez, "Well, Henry, why don't you get started?" With that they both stepped outside to the speaker's lobby.

Gonzalez didn't tell it quite like that. He said that when Foreman gave him a "smart aleck" reply to his question, he asked Foreman to "step outside" because if "you called me a Communist I fully intend to knock the ...out of you."

According to Gonzalez it was then that he "shoved" Foreman. The reason, he said, was that he wanted Foreman to take off his glasses and Foreman wouldn't do it.

Compromise Bill Approved By House Unit

Sweeping Measure Rejected; President, RFK Acclaim Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Kennedy administration won its appeal Tuesday for House Judiciary Committee approval of a compromise civil rights bill. President Kennedy termed the measure comprehensive and fair.

The committee, with a bipartisan coalition in control, rejected a sweeping measure drafted by a subcommittee and voted to accept instead a more moderate bill backed by House leaders of both parties.

Included in the compromise are controversial proposals to ban racial discrimination in places of public accommodation and to create a federal Fair Employment Practices Commission.

The Judiciary Committee is expected to draft a report on the bill during the next week or 10 days and send it to the Rules Committee, where another week probably will be needed to clear the measure for House action.

Enactment Prospects Improve

The President said in a statement that the agreement "has significantly improved prospects for enactment of effective civil rights legislation in Congress this year."

"The bill is a comprehensive and fair bill," Kennedy added. "It will provide effective legal remedies for racial discrimination in voting , education, public accommodations, employment and federal programs. It will provide the basis for men of good will in every city of our land to work together to resolve their racial problems within the framework of law and justice.

"The bill must now pass through the House Rules Committee, be approved by the House, then by the Senate. I am hopeful this can be done as rapidly as possible.

"From the very beginning, enactment of an effective civil rights bill has required that sectional and political differences be set aside in the interest of meeting an urgent national crisis.

"The action by the committee today reflects this kind of leadership."

RFK Praises Republicans

The President's brother, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, said in a statement that without GOP backing in the House "the possibility of civil rights legislation in Congress would have been remote."

"If it hadn't been for the active interest and willingess of the Republicans as represented by Congressman McCulloch and through him by Congressman Halleck," Kennedy added, "we certainly would not be able to have obtained passage of the bill through the committee."

Rep. William M. McCulloch of Ohio is senior Republican on the Judiciary Committee and Rep. Charles A. Halleck of Indiana is the Republican floor leader in the House.

With administration backing as well as the support of House leaders of both parties, the new civil rights package seems assured of passage in the House, and equally assured of heavy opposition in the Senate.

NEW YORK (UPI) — U. S. Steel Corp. Tuesday reported third quarter 1963 profits rose sharply from a year ago but were substantially below the previous quarter.

Booing Pickets Shower Warren With Leaflets

NEW YORK (UPI) — Scores of right wing pickets Tuesday night tossed leaflets and pla cards at U. S. Chief Justice Earl Warren, jeering and hurling epithets at him and New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Some of the leaflets struck the Chief Justice but he apparently was unhurt. The incident occurred outside the Bar Association of the City of New York which had made Warren an honorary member at a testimonial dinner for him.

Rockefeller did not enter or leave the building with Warren but also was booed by the pickets. A cordon of police prevented the demonstrators from touching either Warren or Rockefeller.

No arrests were made. The pickets identified themselves as members of the "Movement To Impeach Earl Warren." The organization is located in Summit, N. J., they said.

At the dinner, Warren told the bar association "the honor guard was waiting for me."

"It's a wonderful thing to travel around the country and find a built-in reception committee, wherever you go," the Chief Justice said, adding, "thank goodness we live in a country where that can be done."

The pickets offered for sale to passersby at $1 a copy pocket books and leaflets entitled, "Nine Men Against America." They shouted, "Warren must go" and "Is the Supreme Court Communist?"

Three counter - pickets also paraded outside the building.

Racial Tension Sweeps Philadelphia After Riot

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Authorities moved swiftly Tuesday in an effort to prevent further violence growing out of the killing of a Negro larceny suspect by a white policeman.

The fatal shooting took place in congested North Philadelphia on Saturday night, triggering mass violence by Negroes. It touched off four hours of rioting Monday night by about 500 Negroes, the climax of what started as a protest rally at a street crossing.

A force of 50 policemen was needed to cope with the Saturday night situation. More than 100 were sent into the fray Monday night.

The mob smashed windows, stole merchandise, damaged automobiles, menaced white drivers, fought with police, threw whatever was at hand.

One policeman and two Negroes were hurt. Twenty-two persons, 19 of them minors, were arrested and charged with malicious mischief, disorderly conduct and breach of the peace.

All damaged stores belong to white merchants, police said.

The city's Human Relations Commission sought to cool resentment and bitterness over the death of Willie Philyaw Jr., 24, by explaining, at a meeting in a neighborhood church, what happened Saturday night.

The commission retold the story of patrolman John Tourigian, who said he tried to question Philyaw about a watch stolen from a store, and that he was forced to shoot when Philyaw came at him with a knife.

Goldwater, in a visit to the state that will be the first major battleground of the struggle for next year's Republican presidential nomination, said the federal system and the power of Congress are basic safeguards of American freedom. And he said they are eroding away.

The Arizona Republican said state governments and Congress "stand together on one side of the battle line" with the executive branch and the Supreme Court usually aligned on the opposite side.

He said the court's decisions show "it has no disposition whatsoever to support the states or the Congress against the executive."

Goldwater told an airport news conference: "If I decide to seek the nomination, I will enter the New Hampshire primary and campaign actively in the state."

He said the latest date for his decision would be Jan. 27, deadline for filing for the Illinois primary.

Goldwater's speech was prepared for a $10-a-plate dinner to raise funds for a chair of government honoring the late Sen. Styles Bridges at New England College in Henniker, N.H.

Goldwater praised Bridges, a conservative Republican from New Hampshire who died in 1961, as a man who fought those who see in government "an opportunity to rule, regulate or regiment."

Goldwater's visit came just 11 days after a quick New Hampshire speaking tour by New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller —who said the Arizona senator has taken foreign policy stands which are not in the best interests of the American people.

Senate Will Run Into '64 Session

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield announced Tuesday the 1963 Senate session will run until the opening of the 1964 meeting on Jan. 3 — but with 22 days of holiday recess during that period.

The Montana Democrat told Senate GOP Leader Everett M. Dirksen and fellow colleagues that the Senate will recess over Veterans Day, Thanksgiving and Christmas on this schedule:

Thanksgiving — Recess from Nov. 27 to Nov. 29, with a "pro forma" meeting that day and another recess until Dec. 3.

Christmas — Recess on a "no business" basis from Dec. 20 to Jan. 2, meeting again on Jan. 3 with a one-minute noon adjournment to mark the opening of the 88th Congress' second session.

Engineer Seized On Spy Charges

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI announced the arrest Tuesday night of a New Jersey electrical engineer on charges of passing classified defense contract information to members of the Soviet delegation to the United Nations.

Arrested by the FBI in Englewood, N. J., was John William Butenko, 38, described as a control administrator in the field operations division of the International Electric Corp., Paramus, N. J.

Also arrested was Igor A. Ivanov, 33, a Russian citizen without diplomatic immunity who acts as a chauffeur for the Soviet trade organization, Amtorg, in New York City. Two members of the Soviet U. N. delegation are being detained, the FBI said.

U.N. To Expand Viet Nam Probe

SAIGON, VIET NAM (AP)—A U.N. investigation of South Viet Nam's political-religious crisis is expanding Wednesday to Hue, where 11 persons were killed in the first violence May 8 during a Buddhist demonstration.

Abdul Rahman Pazhwak of Afghanistan, chairman of the fact-finding mission, announced three of its seven members will make the trip to Hue, a coastal city 400 miles north of Saigon, for a 24-hour study. They will return Thursday.

The others will contine interviews in Saigon.

The investigators Tuesday visited a villa on the outskirts of Saigon being used as a detention center for persons rounded up in the military crackdown on Buddhist foes of President Ngo Dinh Diem's government.

Police barred newsmen, but an informant said the U.N. representatives interviewed a half dozen or so Buddhists, including some monks.

Fourth Straight Son Born On Same Date

CONESBORO, Ark. (AP) — Mrs. Twila Steed made it four in a row Sunday—she gave birth to her fourth straight son on the same date, Oct. 27.

Mrs. Steed, 32, and her husband, Billy, 42, who operate a motel at Leachville, Ark., said they planned it that way.

They had given a birthday party for their other three sons, Mark, 9, Philip, 7, and Stephen, 4, on Saturday before the birth Sunday of Jonathan Daniel.

Dr. Grover Poole, who delivered all four boys, said the births were normal and no drugs were used to slow or speed birth.

"I love my boys but I'd like to have just one girl," Mrs. Steed said. "We may have to break up the birth dates to break up the string of boys."

The Steeds said they want six children.

Steed said they planned the first child for Oct. 27 because it is Navy Day and he was a meteorologist in the Navy in World War II.

Texans After House Fracas

Slug Or Shove, Texans Debate House Run-In

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Ed Foreman, R-Tex., told the House Tuesday that Rep. Henry Gonzalez, D-Tex., slugged him in a fit of anger triggered by Foreman's criticism of his voting record.

Gonzalez denied it. "I didn't hit the guy," he said. "If I had hit him he would have stayed hit." Gonzalez said he only "shoved Foreman a little."

Not so said Foreman. "Gonzalez doubled up his right fist and hit me in the shoulder."

The two Texans agreed on only one thing: It was Gonzalez' voting record that touched off the argument.

Foreman said he had discussed Gonzalez' record last weekend in a Houston speech before the Texas Federation of Republican Women.

Gonzalez said there was more to it than that. He said he had heard that Foreman called him a Communist, and "those are fighting words."

Gonzalez said when heasked Foreman on the House floor if the report was true "he gave me a smart aleck reply."

What happened next depends on who does the talking.

Foreman said he told Gonzalez he did not label him a Communist. According to Foreman, Gonzalez' answer to this was that he would pistol whip him if he had.

Foreman said he told Gonzalez, "Well, Henry, why don't you get started?" With that they both stepped outside to the speaker's lobby.

Gonzalez didn't tell it quite like that. He said that when Foreman gave him a "smart aleck" reply to his question, he asked Foreman to "step outside" because if "you called me a Communist I fully intend to knock the ...out of you."

According to Gonzalez it was then that he "shoved" Foreman. The reason, he said, was that he wanted Foreman to take off his glasses and Foreman wouldn't do it.

Compromise Bill Approved By House Unit

Sweeping Measure Rejected; President, RFK Acclaim Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Kennedy administration won its appeal Tuesday for House Judiciary Committee approval of a compromise civil rights bill. President Kennedy termed the measure comprehensive and fair.

The committee, with a bipartisan coalition in control, rejected a sweeping measure drafted by a subcommittee and voted to accept instead a more moderate bill backed by House leaders of both parties.

Included in the compromise are controversial proposals to ban racial discrimination in places of public accommodation and to create a federal Fair Employment Practices Commission.

The Judiciary Committee is expected to draft a report on the bill during the next week or 10 days and send it to the Rules Committee, where another week probably will be needed to clear the measure for House action.

Enactment Prospects Improve

The President said in a statement that the agreement "has significantly improved prospects for enactment of effective civil rights legislation in Congress this year."

"The bill is a comprehensive and fair bill," Kennedy added. "It will provide effective legal remedies for racial discrimination in voting , education, public accommodations, employment and federal programs. It will provide the basis for men of good will in every city of our land to work together to resolve their racial problems within the framework of law and justice.

"The bill must now pass through the House Rules Committee, be approved by the House, then by the Senate. I am hopeful this can be done as rapidly as possible.

"From the very beginning, enactment of an effective civil rights bill has required that sectional and political differences be set aside in the interest of meeting an urgent national crisis.

"The action by the committee today reflects this kind of leadership."

RFK Praises Republicans

The President's brother, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, said in a statement that without GOP backing in the House "the possibility of civil rights legislation in Congress would have been remote."

"If it hadn't been for the active interest and willingess of the Republicans as represented by Congressman McCulloch and through him by Congressman Halleck," Kennedy added, "we certainly would not be able to have obtained passage of the bill through the committee."

Rep. William M. McCulloch of Ohio is senior Republican on the Judiciary Committee and Rep. Charles A. Halleck of Indiana is the Republican floor leader in the House.

With administration backing as well as the support of House leaders of both parties, the new civil rights package seems assured of passage in the House, and equally assured of heavy opposition in the Senate.

U.S. Steel Profits Up

NEW YORK (UPI) — U. S. Steel Corp. Tuesday reported third quarter 1963 profits rose sharply from a year ago but were substantially below the previous quarter.

Booing Pickets Shower Warren With Leaflets

NEW YORK (UPI) — Scores of right wing pickets Tuesday night tossed leaflets and pla cards at U. S. Chief Justice Earl Warren, jeering and hurling epithets at him and New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Some of the leaflets struck the Chief Justice but he apparently was unhurt. The incident occurred outside the Bar Association of the City of New York which had made Warren an honorary member at a testimonial dinner for him.

Rockefeller did not enter or leave the building with Warren but also was booed by the pickets. A cordon of police prevented the demonstrators from touching either Warren or Rockefeller.

No arrests were made. The pickets identified themselves as members of the "Movement To Impeach Earl Warren." The organization is located in Summit, N. J., they said.

At the dinner, Warren told the bar association "the honor guard was waiting for me."

"It's a wonderful thing to travel around the country and find a built-in reception committee, wherever you go," the Chief Justice said, adding, "thank goodness we live in a country where that can be done."

The pickets offered for sale to passersby at $1 a copy pocket books and leaflets entitled, "Nine Men Against America." They shouted, "Warren must go" and "Is the Supreme Court Communist?"

Three counter - pickets also paraded outside the building.

Racial Tension Sweeps Philadelphia After Riot

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Authorities moved swiftly Tuesday in an effort to prevent further violence growing out of the killing of a Negro larceny suspect by a white policeman.

The fatal shooting took place in congested North Philadelphia on Saturday night, triggering mass violence by Negroes. It touched off four hours of rioting Monday night by about 500 Negroes, the climax of what started as a protest rally at a street crossing.

A force of 50 policemen was needed to cope with the Saturday night situation. More than 100 were sent into the fray Monday night.

The mob smashed windows, stole merchandise, damaged automobiles, menaced white drivers, fought with police, threw whatever was at hand.

One policeman and two Negroes were hurt. Twenty-two persons, 19 of them minors, were arrested and charged with malicious mischief, disorderly conduct and breach of the peace.

All damaged stores belong to white merchants, police said.

The city's Human Relations Commission sought to cool resentment and bitterness over the death of Willie Philyaw Jr., 24, by explaining, at a meeting in a neighborhood church, what happened Saturday night.

The commission retold the story of patrolman John Tourigian, who said he tried to question Philyaw about a watch stolen from a store, and that he was forced to shoot when Philyaw came at him with a knife.

$6 Billion Debt Lid Hike Asked By Administration

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Kennedy administration asked for a $6-billion hike in borrowing authority Tuesday, but at the same time said the prospective deficit is almost $3 billion less than had been feared.

There was every indication that the Treasury will have to settle for a lower national debt ceiling than the $315 billion recommended to the House Ways and Means Committee by Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon.

The ceiling, now $309 billion, drops automatically to $285 billion Nov. 30 unless Congress acts.

The House approved the latest increase last spring by a margin of only nine votes.

Not only have Republicans announced a harder fight to hold down debtl-imit increases, but the Democratic chairman of the committee told Dillon he has a feeling the administration may still be overestimating its need to borrow.

"I can't prove it and I am not suggesting it as a basis for calculations," Chairman Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas said, "but I have a feeling we may hope for a deficit of perhaps $7 billion instead of $9 billion."

Dillon said he expects the deficit, when this fiscal year ends June 30, to be $9 billion instead of the $11.9 billion President Kennedy forecast in January.

Rep. John W. Byrnes of Wisconsin, senior Republican member of the Ways and Means Committee, told a reporter he would have to study the $315-billion proposal before deciding on a course ofaction.

Earlier Byrnes had said that if the committee approved a figure Republicans considered too high, they might try to defeat the debt limit bill entirely, instead of trying as in the past to modify it.

The committee scheduled a closed session Wednesday to consider the legislation.

Hurricane Ginny Hits Nova Scotia

BOSTON (AP) — Hurricane Ginny, still a threat, raged over Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island late Tuesday, leaving behind welcome heavy rains in parched New England.

Greenwood, N.S., measured winds exceeding 100 miles per hour and St. Johns, N.B., had gusts up to 92 m.p.h.

Although winds at the storm's center measured about 100 miles an hour in gusts, Ginny's travel over land and cold water caused it to lose tropical characteristics and the Weather Bureau said it is "no longer a true hurricane."

At 5 p.m., the center of the storm was over the western portion of Prince Edward Island after having crossed Nova Scotia near Yarmouth. It was moving rapidly to the northeast, with gales extending 150 miles from the center in its western semicircle and 350 miles in the eastern semicircle.

S&L Mail Fraud Trial Jury List Reduced To 44

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A list of prospective jurors was whittled Tuesday to 44 from which a final 12 and four alternates will be chosen to try the Maryland savings and loan mail fraud case in federal court.

The jury will be sworn Monday afternoon. The actual trial will begin with the governments opening statement by Assistant U.S. Attorney Steve Sachs.

Judge Roszel C. Thomsen deferred the time for swearing of the jury to accommodate a request by counsel for D. Spencer Grow, Provo, Utah, savings and loan operator, one of three defendants. Attorney Edward P. Morgan told the court Grow was busy winding up some important business involving his saving and loan companies and would be on hand Monday.

The judge also said the long weekend would give another defendant, Oran C. Mensik, a Chicago financier, time to employ a new attorney. A Richmond attorney was under consideration as replacement for Edward J. Callahan of Chicago whose view, Mensik said, clashed with his own.

Henry McGurren, Chicago attorney who was Mensik's lawyer in some of his financial operations, is the third defendant in the Richmond case, transferred from Baltimore's U.S. District Court.

Trial Ordered For Christine

LONDON (AP) — A magistrate's court has ordered Christine Keeler to stand trial in Old Bailey Criminal Court on charges of concocting a story that her former lover beat her up. If convicted by a jury, Miss Keeler could be sent to prison for up to 28 years.

The 21-year-old party girl heard the decision Tuesday, then left for a reunion with her father who abandoned his family 17 years ago. The private meeting took place in the drawing room of a house Miss Keeler is renting near the court.

The father, 40, a photographer who changed his name to Colin King, turned up in the spectators' gallery Monday.

The last time he saw her, he said, she was standing at the entrance of an air raid shelter. Christine was 4 at the time.

Witnesses had testified that Miss Keeler had been harassed by Aloysius Gordon, West Indian jazz singer who once lived with her.

This was before the scandal broke into the open with the resignation June 6 of John D. Profumo as Britain's War Minister.

Miss Keeler is charged with perjury and conspiracy to obstruct justice.

Ford Sales Up But Profits Off

DETROIT (AP)—Ford Motor Co. reported Tuesday its total dollar sales thus far in 1963 hit a new nine-month high, but that profits sagged a bit.

Factory sales of Ford U.S.-built cars were lower this year for both the third quarter and the nine months. Of the company's eight makes, only the Ford and Mercury lines had increases. Sales of trucks and tractors were up, thus taking up some of the slack.

Ford's third-quarter report showed sales for the first nine months of 1963 were $6.197 billion and profits were $346 million, or $3.14 a share. That compared with the first nine months last year when sales were $5.790 billion and profits were $350 million, or $3.18 a share.

Tawes Assails Arundel County Bond Turndown

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Gov. Tawes and Anne Arundel County Commissioners disagreed Wednesday over an industrial bond proposal which the commissioners refused to approve.

Tawes said at a news conference that "political bickering" was responsible for the 5-3 vote against issuing revenue bonds for a plant in the northern end of the county.

"There was no political bickering on the board," replied board president Joseph Collinson.

Tawes said the Revere Copper and Brass Co. was "not asking for any special tax benefit." He pointed out thatthe bonds would be repaid bythe company at no cost to county taxpayers.

"I still say they should look into this very carefully and cut out their political bickering on things oft his kind. And that's what it amounts to — political bickering," Tawes said.

"The only political bickering on this matter came from the governor's office," said Commissioner Robert H. Campbell, one of those who opposed the bond issue.

He said he voted against the measure "because I am opposed to using the public name and credit to float tax exempt bonds for private industry. This goes against the basic concept of private industry."

Two Charged With Booby-Trapping Car

BALTIMORE (AP) — Eugene G. Comi, 22 , and John A. Tellagsen, 42, were charged by a grand jury Tuesday with attempting to murder Comi's 23-year-old estranged wife, Mrs. Barbara Comi.

The jury also accused the men of conspiring to kill Mrs. Comi.

The men were arrested Monday after an Army demolition squad dismantled a home-made bomb found under the hood of Mrs. Comi's car.

The bomb was two sticks of dynamite wired to the ignition coil. The Army officer who dismantled it said the bomb would have exploded had the ignition been turned on.

Vatican Council Deemphasizes Study Of Mary

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican Ecumenical Council decided Tuesday to consider a theological topic about the Virgin Mary within a document concerning the Roman Catholic Church as a whole, rather than give her the emphasis of a special study.

The vote was 1,114 to 1,074.

The council's theological commission now will have to revise the Marian topic, or schema, to fit consideration of the Virgin's place in Catholic theology into the broad schema on the nature of the Church, "De Ecclesia."

Council fathers insisted their action did not downgrade Mary. But the decision in St. Peter's was clearly a change in council handling of theological topics and could affect Catholicism's relations with other Christians in a quest for unity. Protestants often have criticized the Roman Catholic emphasis on Mary.

"The Marian document is now to become part of a Christ-centered concept of the Church," said the Rev. Berand Haring, a German Redemptorist priest.

One of the most respected Catholic theologians, Father Haring said the decision "gets away from a departmentalization in which you have Christ, the Church and Mary, in favor of a concept in which you have Christ and His Church, within which is Mary."

"Many speakers had argued that devoting a full and separate schema to Mary would only rankle other Christians and reinforce what some speakers considered to be a distorted emphasis on the Madonna in parts of the Catholic world."

Man Again Found Guilty Of Murder

BALTIMORE (AP) — A Baltimore man was convicted of murder for a second time Tuesday after the U.S. Supreme Court reversed his prior conviction and death sentence.

A Baltimore Criminal Court jury deliberated for five hours before returning a verdict of guilty against Robert Galloway White, 33, in the robbery and slaying of Benjamin Ingber, 67, a grocer.

Ingber was beaten to death with a bowling pin in his store.

The Supreme Court reversed White's earlier conviction on grounds he lacked counsel at a preliminary hearing.

Judge Charles D. Harris deferred imposing sentence pending possible motions for a new trial. The jury's verdict carried no qualifications, allowing Judge Harris to impose the death sentence again or life imprisonment.

Rees Jurors Summoned To Hearing

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — Defense attorneys seeking to overturn the murder conviction of Melvin Davis Rees Jr. are subpoenaing 18 persons—including the 12 jurors who found him guilty—to a federal court hearing here next week.

The 10 men and two women who composed the Spotsylvania County Circuit Court jury which convicted Rees in September 1961 for the murder of Carroll Vernon Jackson Jr. are being summoned to the Nov. 7-8 hearing in support of the defense move for a writ of habeas corpus.

Rees, a 34-year-old former dance band musician, was sentenced to die for the slaying of Jackson, a Louisa County feed truck driver. Jackson, his wife and two young daughters were kidnaped from their car on a Louisa County road the night of Jan. 11, 1959.

The bodies of Jackson and his infant daughter, Janet, were found at an abandoned sawmill site in Spotsylvania County. The bodies of Mrs. Jackson and the other daughter, Susan, 5, were found near Gambrills, Md.

Rees already is under two life terms imposed in Baltimore federal district court for kidnaping Mrs. Rees and Susan. He also is charged with murder in the death of Janet.

In seeking to upset the verdict, defense attorney S. White Rhyne Jr. is contending the FBI illegally seized from a locked accordion case in the home of Rees' parents a pistol identified as the Jackson murder weapon.

The attorney also is questioning whether Rees' parents were subjected to coercion or false representation when they gave the FBI consent to search their home. He is pressing, too, the questions of whether publicity ruled out the chances of a fair trial in Spotsylvania and whether Rees' rights were violated because he was held in the state penitentiary in Richmond rather than in the Fredericksburg jail.

Morse Seeks Aid Revisions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The annual Senate floor fight over foreign aid gathered steam Tuesday as Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., tossed in the first batch of proposed amendments and announced he had more to come.

Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois told a news conference he expects something like 40 amendments to be offered, since the Senate Foreign Relations Committee restored so many House cuts.

Morse, Sens. Ernest Gruening, D-Alaska, and Allen J. Ellender, D-La., among others, will demand roll calls on about half of them, Dirksen predicted. He said the debate should extend at least until next week.

The aid bill was discussed at a GOP policy luncheon, but no attempt was made to reach a party decision, Dirksen told newsmen.

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Gov. Tawes and Anne Arundel County Commissioners disagreed Wednesday over an industrial bond proposal which the commissioners refused to approve.

Tawes said at a news conference that "political bickering" was responsible for the 5-3 vote against issuing revenue bonds for a plant in the northern end of the county.

"There was no political bickering on the board," replied board president Joseph Collinson.

Tawes said the Revere Copper and Brass Co. was "not asking for any special tax benefit." He pointed out thatthe bonds would be repaid bythe company at no cost to county taxpayers.

"I still say they should look into this very carefully and cut out their political bickering on things oft his kind. And that's what it amounts to — political bickering," Tawes said.

"The only political bickering on this matter came from the governor's office," said Commissioner Robert H. Campbell, one of those who opposed the bond issue.

He said he voted against the measure "because I am opposed to using the public name and credit to float tax exempt bonds for private industry. This goes against the basic concept of private industry."

Two Charged With Booby-Trapping Car

BALTIMORE (AP) — Eugene G. Comi, 22 , and John A. Tellagsen, 42, were charged by a grand jury Tuesday with attempting to murder Comi's 23-year-old estranged wife, Mrs. Barbara Comi.

The jury also accused the men of conspiring to kill Mrs. Comi.

The men were arrested Monday after an Army demolition squad dismantled a home-made bomb found under the hood of Mrs. Comi's car.

The bomb was two sticks of dynamite wired to the ignition coil. The Army officer who dismantled it said the bomb would have exploded had the ignition been turned on.

Vatican Council Deemphasizes Study Of Mary

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican Ecumenical Council decided Tuesday to consider a theological topic about the Virgin Mary within a document concerning the Roman Catholic Church as a whole, rather than give her the emphasis of a special study.

The vote was 1,114 to 1,074.

The council's theological commission now will have to revise the Marian topic, or schema, to fit consideration of the Virgin's place in Catholic theology into the broad schema on the nature of the Church, "De Ecclesia."

Council fathers insisted their action did not downgrade Mary. But the decision in St. Peter's was clearly a change in council handling of theological topics and could affect Catholicism's relations with other Christians in a quest for unity. Protestants often have criticized the Roman Catholic emphasis on Mary.

"The Marian document is now to become part of a Christ-centered concept of the Church," said the Rev. Berand Haring, a German Redemptorist priest.

One of the most respected Catholic theologians, Father Haring said the decision "gets away from a departmentalization in which you have Christ, the Church and Mary, in favor of a concept in which you have Christ and His Church, within which is Mary."

"Many speakers had argued that devoting a full and separate schema to Mary would only rankle other Christians and reinforce what some speakers considered to be a distorted emphasis on the Madonna in parts of the Catholic world."

Man Again Found Guilty Of Murder

BALTIMORE (AP) — A Baltimore man was convicted of murder for a second time Tuesday after the U.S. Supreme Court reversed his prior conviction and death sentence.

A Baltimore Criminal Court jury deliberated for five hours before returning a verdict of guilty against Robert Galloway White, 33, in the robbery and slaying of Benjamin Ingber, 67, a grocer.

Ingber was beaten to death with a bowling pin in his store.

The Supreme Court reversed White's earlier conviction on grounds he lacked counsel at a preliminary hearing.

Judge Charles D. Harris deferred imposing sentence pending possible motions for a new trial. The jury's verdict carried no qualifications, allowing Judge Harris to impose the death sentence again or life imprisonment.

Rees Jurors Summoned To Hearing

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — Defense attorneys seeking to overturn the murder conviction of Melvin Davis Rees Jr. are subpoenaing 18 persons—including the 12 jurors who found him guilty—to a federal court hearing here next week.

The 10 men and two women who composed the Spotsylvania County Circuit Court jury which convicted Rees in September 1961 for the murder of Carroll Vernon Jackson Jr. are being summoned to the Nov. 7-8 hearing in support of the defense move for a writ of habeas corpus.

Rees, a 34-year-old former dance band musician, was sentenced to die for the slaying of Jackson, a Louisa County feed truck driver. Jackson, his wife and two young daughters were kidnaped from their car on a Louisa County road the night of Jan. 11, 1959.

The bodies of Jackson and his infant daughter, Janet, were found at an abandoned sawmill site in Spotsylvania County. The bodies of Mrs. Jackson and the other daughter, Susan, 5, were found near Gambrills, Md.

Rees already is under two life terms imposed in Baltimore federal district court for kidnaping Mrs. Rees and Susan. He also is charged with murder in the death of Janet.

In seeking to upset the verdict, defense attorney S. White Rhyne Jr. is contending the FBI illegally seized from a locked accordion case in the home of Rees' parents a pistol identified as the Jackson murder weapon.

The attorney also is questioning whether Rees' parents were subjected to coercion or false representation when they gave the FBI consent to search their home. He is pressing, too, the questions of whether publicity ruled out the chances of a fair trial in Spotsylvania and whether Rees' rights were violated because he was held in the state penitentiary in Richmond rather than in the Fredericksburg jail.

Morse Seeks Aid Revisions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The annual Senate floor fight over foreign aid gathered steam Tuesday as Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., tossed in the first batch of proposed amendments and announced he had more to come.

Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois told a news conference he expects something like 40 amendments to be offered, since the Senate Foreign Relations Committee restored so many House cuts.

Morse, Sens. Ernest Gruening, D-Alaska, and Allen J. Ellender, D-La., among others, will demand roll calls on about half of them, Dirksen predicted. He said the debate should extend at least until next week.

The aid ¨l was discussed at a GOP policy luncheon, but no attempt was made to reach a party decision, Dirksen told newsmen.

Paye Named Engineer

At the request of the Allegany County Sanitary Commission, the county commissioners yesterday approved the selection of Albert S. Paye, county engineer, as the resident engineer in charge of the sewage construction work for the Bowling Green-Roberts Place section.

Paye will employe the necessary engineering personnel needed for the project. It was estimated that the savings to the sanitary commission would be about $25,000 to $30,000 by eliminating consulting engineering fees. Engineering personnel and inspectors on the project will be hired locally, the commissioners said. The sewage project is being planned to start as soon as various preliminary measures are completed.

The board also instructed Harry T. Skelly, county roads supervisor, to proceed with light surface type work on Cresap Drive in Bowling Green to handle the traffic during the winter months.

This was decided yesterday to provide a reasonable surface for traffic on the street. A permanent hardsurface project will be installed after the work in connection with laying sewer lines in that section is completed.

Mrs. James Brown, Valley Road, appeared before the board to ask that the roadway in the vicinity of Knob Road be widened.

She said that the property owner has assured her he would grant the county the necessary right-of-way. It was stated that the road is too narrow for school buses and fire trucks when they answer calls in that section. Several feet on the south side of the roadway, which is an embankment, could be cut away to provide the needed width, according to Commissioner Russell Carder.

He said he would have the Roads Department check into the matter for a report in about a week.

Keegan Takes Exception To Zoning Plan

Police and Fire Commissioner William V. Keegan has taken exception to proposed new zoning regulations which would make the Lafayette Avenue section a strictly industrial section and prohibit residential development.

Keegan made his comment after the Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission reported to the Mayor and Council that as a result of a public hearing held on proposed new regulations it had granted the request of Sylvan Avenue residents to change zoning from RG 2 to RG 1; denied a Frederick Street commercial zone request; and denied a Lafayette Avenue residential zone request.

Keegan said there were a couple of business places, a playground and some residences in the Lafayette area and many people had purchased lots there with the intent to build. Under new regulations, no residential properties would be allowed and the commissioner said "We shouldn't tear up peoples' places like that."

Mayor Earl D. Chaney noted that the playground (Post) was in a bad place, to which Keegan retorted "We are in a bad place, too, or we would not need urban renewal."

In recommending the industrial zoning of Lafayette, it was indicated by the commission that a pattern of industrial and commercial use already is apparent in the area.

The letter from the commission was ordered filed and recommendations brought to the attention of department heads. The new zoning regulations which have been proposed have not yet been adopted.

Council was invited to meet a caravan which will tour the route of the proposed Appalachian road from Williamsport, Pa., to Cumberland, November 14. The group, according to Robert C. Petersen, manager of the Chamber of Commerce and a vice president of the Appalachian road promotion organization, will be at the access bridge to Hillcrest Drive, east of the city, at 4:30 p. m. A short explanation of the route will be given there, including Cumberland's Thruway and its connection to Route 220 north and south. The Appalachian road would generally follow Route 220. Later, the caravan group will go to Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club for a coffee and rest stop before going on to Bedford for a meeting that evening to which Gov. William Scranton of Pennsylvania and Gov. J. Millard Tawes of Maryland have been invited.

Store Burglary Is Investigated

City Police are investigating the breaking and entering and theft of money and cigarettes from a South End store sometime early Sunday morning.

Joseph W. Lewis, who operates Joe's Cut Rate Store, 1100 Ella Avenue, told police burglars took 10 or 12 cartons of cigarettes and money from a juke box and pinball machine.

Two newspaper boys, Ray Miller, 1003 Layette Avenue, and Rick Keller, 108 Elder Street, discovered the front door of the store open about 6 a.m.

Mr. Lewis told police he closed the store at 10:45 Saturday night. Detective Frank Bohn investigated the burglary.

Junket Voted Down

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House, in what may be an unprecedented action, refused Monday to approve an overseas fact-finding junket for five of its own members.

The roll-call vote was 164-119.

The group wanted to study how seven European countries were processing scientific and technical data, especially Soviet Russia.

County Backs Appalachian Road Plan

On motion by County Commissioner Robert Little Ebert, the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday adopted a resolution supporting the proposed Appalachian Thruway from Williamsport ot Cumberland via the route of U.S. 220.

The commissioners also voted to purchase a $100 membership in the association from the five Pennsylvania counties and Allegany County, which would make up a promotional group for the project.

The action followed receipt of a letter from Robert Petersen, manager of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce and vice president of the Thruway Association.

It was announced that a meeting November 14 at Bedford Springs Hotel of the association is expected to have both Gov. Tawes of Maryland and Gov. Scranton of Pennsylvania, along with other top officials of both states, attending.

The association has set a budget of $12,000 to promote the north-south thruway. Allegany County's share, based on mileage and population, is $900. The bulk of the thruway would be in Pennsylvania.

Meanwhile, it was pointed out that the Maryland State Roads Commission has requested the federal government to allot additional Interstate highway mileage for an Appalachian route which would be generally along the present U.S. Route 40 in Garrett County.

Backers of the Thruway state there is no north-south highway in the Appalachian area and such a project would prove valuable in attracting industry and improving travel in the area involved.

Kennedy To Speak

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy will go to Philadelphia late Wednesday to speak at an annual dinner given by the Democratic City Committee.

SRC To Inspect Boulevard Project

The final inspection prior to acceptance of the Industrial Boulevard and related work between the Wineow Street underpass and West Third Street will be made today by John D. Bushby, district engineers for the State Roads Commission and members of his staff.

The Cumberland Contracting Company has completed the project which included about half a mile of dual lane highway, relocation of Cresap Street from the boulevard to the Maryland Avenue-Oldtown Road intersection.

Bushby said this project cost $453,000 and completes the boulevard to a point where the new bridge across the B&O Railroad will tie-in, near the Cumberland Macaroni Factory building, on what was Thomas Street.

Bushby said that the old route of Cresap Street has been retained and a concrete wall was erected on one side of the new street route as part of the project.

The C. J. Langenfelder Company of Baltimore has begun preliminary work on the new bridge, which is costing over $1 million. Work on the bridge project will probably be continued throughout the winter months, Bushby said, if the weather does not become too bad.

Included in the Langenfelder project is the continuation of the dual lane highway from the northern end of the bridge to Williams Street. This part of the program will be started next spring, Bushby stated.

The city water and gas lines will be carried across the railroad via the bridge structure. One part of the dual bridge traffic lane will be completed first and placed in use before the parallel section is built. This will eliminate any tie-up in traffic to and from the southern section of the city via Wineow Street and Industrial Boulevard.

The railroad underpass will be abandoned and filled in as part of the project, Bushby said.

MEDICS BEAT SMOKING HABIT
NEW YORK: The American Cancer Society states: In 1962, 41,232 men and women died of lung cancer which was conclusively linked to excessive smoking. Heart disease was another big killer, and here again cigarette smoking was found to be the culprit.
Doctors and psychiatrists on the Medical Advisory Board of the National Council on Smoking and Health have developed a completely new method and pill to help smokers give up the habit. Now the National Council's own medically approved method is described in a report free to smokers who are alert to the dangers of smoking. Send your name and address to: The National Council on Smoking and Health — Dept. 359-K1 225 East 46th Street, New York 17, New York.

Vagabond Not Always Vagrant

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — Anybody walking through the Missouri Ozarks is entitled to sleep beside the road without fear of being arrested for vagrancy, Magistrate E. A. Barbour ruled in dismissing a case against a 38-year-old traveler.

"This is a free country," Judge Barbour ruled, "and a man is entitled to travel through the country. I just don't understand how a man could be asleep by the highway while he's traveling and be arrested for vagrancy. Case dismissed."

Dreamboat In

GUNTERSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Elmer G. Newton didn't wait for their ship to come in — they built it themselves.

Newton, 75, and his 80-year-old wife began construction on the 54-foot, 44-ton diesel powered ketch 15 years ago. In three years and 11,020 man-hours of labor they completed the huge yacht and have since logged nearly 30,000 miles in it.

The former Chicagoans, who now call Guntersville home port, are the entire crew of the ship, which includes a real fireplace and an electric organ. Newton is a retired electrical engineer.

Bob Hope stars Friday nights on NBC-TV

Bob Hope (speaking for Uncle Sam) gives our newspaperboys an "Oscar"

If it were up to me to decide the Oscars (am I kidding?), I'd give one to America's newspaperboys for their performance.

I mean their day-after-day performance, fair weather or foul, delivering papers and good cheer to their customers. Learning how to be good neighbors and good businessmen, too.

But what I'm really here for is to tell you what a job newspaperboys have done for the Treasury Department — helping to promote U.S. Savings Bonds and Stamps, and buying plenty themselves out of their earnings.

They've found Bonds a great way to save for a college education — and as you and I know, they're a great way to keep our country strong, too.

So this is Bob (Uncle Sam) Hope saying thanks for all of us to all you newspaperboys — our Hope (if you'll pardon the expression) of the future.

Quick facts about U.S. Savings Bonds

- You get $4 for every $3 at maturity
- You can get your money anytime
- Your Bonds are replaced free if lost, destroyed, or stolen
- You can save automatically on Payroll Savings where you work

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a boy 17 years old who has never had a serious conversation with either of my parents. It seems incredible that people can live under the same roof for so many years and never experience an exchange of ideas, but I swear it's the truth.

My parents are both professional people, socially prominent and well-respected in the community. They are good speakers and in demand as lecturers. But they don't know how to talk to their own son.

I have tried to get my parents to talk to me but I've failed. They are polite, they clothe, feed and instruct me but they haven't the faintest idea of how I feel about anything.

My best friend's father never saw the ninth grade. He works in an automobile factory. His mother is a dressmaker. Yet there is fun and laughter and real conversation in their home. They are all friends. What is wrong in our house? — HIGH WALL

DEAR HIGH WALL: In a word —no communication. The time to start talking to children is the moment they are born. Parents who don't think their youngsters have any ideas worth listening to find one day that their children are strangers.

Educated parents are not necessarily successful parents. No course in college teaches warmth, love and how to give and share. Such feelings are caught — not taught.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My problem is a wife who is a spender. I work two jobs and make excellent money. I turn everything over to her and she gives me $5 a week.

We are forever being dunned by bill collectors. We can't afford a really nice vacation or a new car, but we seem to have money for everything and anything a door-to-door salesman has to sell.

We borrowed money from my family five years ago to make a down-payment on our home. This debt has not been repaid and I feel rotten about it because I know my folks could use the money.

My wife is a good mother and a pleasant person but I'm tired both physically and mentally with this disorganized, frustrating way of life. What's the answer? — DOWN IN THE DUMPS

DEAR DOWN: Tell your wife the noble experiment is over and now you will handle the money and give HER an allowance. Plan a budget and stick to it. And please don't fail to include a monthly payment to your parents

DEAR ANN: I just had to write to tell you how right you are. I was like Vincent's mother — I wouldn't let my son out of my sight. I kept telling myself that my son needed me, but I know now it was MY weakness, not his. Today I am sad and sorry.

My "Vincent" is 22 years old and he can't decide what necktie to wear in the morning. He barely got out of high school and he stayed in college three weeks and then came home — like Vincent, who couldn't stay at camp.

My son has no friends, either boys or girls. All he wants to do is hang around with me and the other widows in my crowd. He is an overgrown baby and I am to blame. Thanks for letting me get this off my chest. — VINCENT NUMBER TWO'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Getting it off YOUR chest doesn't do much for your son. This boy needs professional help and I hope you will see that he gets it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO SHOULD I OR SHOULDN'T I?: You should NOT. Tell him to take a long walk on a short dock.

Parents are people — they can be right and they can be wrong. To help understand their viewpoint and to promote harmony at home, write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Secrets Of Charm

Hints For The Teen-Age Hostess

Giving a party? The sooner you start planning for it, the more successful it will be. There's more to entertaining than simply "inviting the gang over" and opening up bags of potato chips.

Young people like action and lots of it. It helps put them at their ease. When the party's program doesn't provide it, they'll feel impelled to provide their own — which may result in the party's "getting out of hand."

Or, what is feared even more by the novice hostess, the young guests uncertain about what to say and what to do may just freeze — in which case the party ends up a "real drag."

That's why it's so important to have a program for the evening prepared in advance. The best way to set one up is to hold a consultation with mother, sister or whichever older person you've asked to chaperone the party. Their suggestions will have been pre-tested by experience; what's more, taken into your confidence, they'll be that much more effective in backing you up when you must exercise your new social skills in keeping your party perking along smoothly.

And you'll need skill to make sure that your guests relax and enjoy the same good time that you hope to have yourself.

It'll be up to you to create an atmosphere and set a pace that will permit each one of your guests to show up at his or her best advantage. Down deep, that's how everyone wants to appear to the others around him. They want to be able to be themselves. And that's exactly what they will be when party activities permit them to forget themselves.

You're the one who will mingle with the entire group, introducing topics to stimulate conversation, encouraging shy guests to blossom out (even if it's only by asking them to help you pass the refreshments), gently squelching at the start any signs of raucous behavior or a quick switch of group interest to a participation-game . . . a tactic useful in rescuing any party from any signs of doldrums.

A party program is not a train-schedule, but only a guide. So keep it flexible . . . and make sure it holds plenty of variety, so that it can match the changing moods of your guests.

To be certain your supply of entertainment can't run dry, try this: Ask each guest to contribute a game idea as "admission" to the party. Hostesses with the mostest experience entertaining happy guests insist that this cue for co-operation never fails.

Taxpayers League Names Directors

Seven new directors of the Cumberland Taxpayers and Property Owners League were named in the annual election.

Elected to the board were Karl W. Bachman, Douglas R. Bowie, William R. Carscaden, Robert Littie Ebert, John E. Geare, Harry Kauffman and George M. Young.

Voting in the election were 62 of the 157 members of the league, which is a committee of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce.

Rotarians Hear Truckers' Views On Rate Issue

Members of the Cumberland Rotary Club were told yesterday by an American Trucking Association spokesman that proposed legislation to eliminate minimum rate controls on bulk and agricultural products would open the door to unlimited and uncontrolled rate warfare.

Robert L. McHale, Washington, D.C., Midwest public relations field representative for the association, said the proposal — hailed by the railroads and opposed by motor and water carriers — would result in crippling the motor carrier industry.

He said transportation finds itself in the spotlight of public attention today "because our transport associates — the railroads — have for the past 15 years, been repeating with greater and greater emphasis, that they are in trouble."

In recent years, he added, the suggestion has been broadened to include all transportation.

But he said four out of the five — airlines, barge lines, pipe lines and the trucking industry — are in good health and certainly not in deep trouble.

Trucking industry leaders, he said, point out that the illness of almost any single failing railroad can be charged to one or more of the following: unprofitable passenger service, excessive volume of short hauls and heavy investment in obsolete facilities.

He said railroad spokesmen have recognized that surplus railroad mileage is one of the factors and quoted a spokesman saying that less than 10 per cent of the miles of track carry half of the freight ton-miles while 67,000 miles of main line — about 30 per cent — carry only two per cent of the total freight business.

He said the trucking industry feels that before making drastic suggestions to Congress, rail management "should do something about a situation like this."

The proposal to eliminate minimum rate controls on bulk and agricultural products, he said, would take away controls which have brought order and consistency to the economy and would be "the first step to total deregulation."

Another Wheat Deal

OTTAWA (UPI)—The Canadian government Tuesday signed a $90 million long-term wheat agreement with Czechoslovakia calling for the sale of some 44,400,000 bushels to the Czechs during the next five years.

Helium and hydrogen are the gases with the greatest lifting power. Hydrogen is the more powerful, but helium is more satisfactory because it is non-inflammable and inert.

City Building Permits Total $5,085,330

Building permits with a declared value of $5,085,330 have been issued by the City of Cumberland this year.

This represents the biggest construction year in recent history and the end is not in sight, according to inquiries received by staffers of the City Engineering Department.

October construction permits alone were valued at $2,124,803.

Included were 12 residences valued at $132,000, a $1,000 residential garage, four carports at $2,225, a $1,972,478 addition to Memorial Hospital, five additions to residences at $2,100, a $10,000 addition to a business, and a $5,000 improvement to a business.

The October permits include 17 for new construction valued at $135,225 and eight addition and improvement projects estimated to cost $1,989,578.

City Hall workers reported there are good indications that 1964 will be a good construction year here.

They said plans for public housing and school construction, along with several commercial projects scheduled next year makes it virtually sure that 1964 will be another good construction year.

Court Probates Guy Propst Will

The will of Guy Propst, who ended his own life July 25 after first killing his two step-children, was probated yesterday in Allegany County Orphans Court.

My parents are both professional people, socially prominent and well-respected in the community. They are good speakers and in demand as lecturers. But they don't know how to talk to their own son.

I have tried to get my parents to talk to me but I've failed. They are polite, they clothe, feed and instruct me but they haven't the faintest idea of how I feel about anything.

My best friend's father never saw the ninth grade. He works in an automobile factory. His mother is a dressmaker. Yet there is fun and laughter and real conversation in their home. They are all friends. What is wrong in our house? — HIGH WALL

DEAR HIGH WALL: In a word —no communication. The time to start talking to children is the moment they are born. Parents who don't think their youngsters have any ideas worth listening to find one day that their children are strangers.

Educated parents are not necessarily successful parents. No course in college teaches warmth, love and how to give and share. Such feelings are caught — not taught.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My problem is a wife who is a spender. I work two jobs and make excellent money. I turn everything over to her and she gives me $5 a week.

We are forever being dunned by bill collectors. We can't afford a really nice vacation or a new car, but we seem to have money for everything and anything a door-to-door salesman has to sell.

We borrowed money from my family five years ago to make a down-payment on our home. This debt has not been repaid and I feel rotten about it because I know my folks could use the money.

My wife is a good mother and a pleasant person but I'm tired both physically and mentally with this disorganized, frustrating way of life. What's the answer? — DOWN IN THE DUMPS

DEAR DOWN: Tell your wife the noble experiment is over and now you will handle the money and give HER an allowance. Plan a budget and stick to it. And please don't fail to include a monthly payment to your parents

DEAR ANN: I just had to write to tell you how right you are. I was like Vincent's mother — I wouldn't let my son out of my sight. I kept telling myself that my son needed me, but I know now it was MY weakness, not his. Today I am sad and sorry.

My "Vincent" is 22 years old and he can't decide what necktie to wear in the morning. He barely got out of high school and he stayed in college three weeks and then came home — like Vincent, who couldn't stay at camp.

My son has no friends, either boys or girls. All he wants to do is hang around with me and the other widows in my crowd. He is an overgrown baby and I am to blame. Thanks for letting me get this off my chest. — VINCENT NUMBER TWO'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Getting it off YOUR chest doesn't do much for your son. This boy needs professional help and I hope you will see that he gets it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO SHOULD I OR SHOULDN'T I?: You should NOT. Tell him to take a long walk on a short dock.

Parents are people — they can be right and they can be wrong. To help understand their viewpoint and to promote harmony at home, write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Hints For The Teen-Age Hostess

Giving a party? The sooner you start planning for it, the more successful it will be. There's more to entertaining than simply "inviting the gang over" and opening up bags of potato chips.

Young people like action and lots of it. It helps put them at their ease. When the party's program doesn't provide it, they'll feel impelled to provide their own — which may result in the party's "getting out of hand."

Or, what is feared even more by the novice hostess, the young guests uncertain about what to say and what to do may just freeze — in which case the party ends up a "real drag."

That's why it's so important to have a program for the evening prepared in advance. The best way to set one up is to hold a consultation with mother, sister or whichever older person you've asked to chaperone the party. Their suggestions will have been pre-tested by experience; what's more, taken into your confidence, they'll be that much more effective in backing you up when you must exercise your new social skills in keeping your party perking along smoothly.

And you'll need skill to make sure that your guests relax and enjoy the same good time that you hope to have yourself.

It'll be up to you to create an atmosphere and set a pace that will permit each one of your guests to show up at his or her best advantage. Down deep, that's how everyone wants to appear to the others around him. They want to be able to be themselves. And that's exactly what they will be when party activities permit them to forget themselves.

You're the one who will mingle with the entire group, introducing topics to stimulate conversation, encouraging shy guests to blossom out (even if it's only by asking them to help you pass the refreshments), gently squelching at the start any signs of raucous behavior or a quick switch of group interest to a participation-game . . . a tactic useful in rescuing any party from any signs of doldrums.

A party program is not a train-schedule, but only a guide. So keep it flexible . . . and make sure it holds plenty of variety, so that it can match the changing moods of your guests.

To be certain your supply of entertainment can't run dry, try this: Ask each guest to contribute a game idea as "admission" to the party. Hostesses with the mostest experience entertaining happy guests insist that this cue for co-operation never fails.

Taxpayers League Names Directors

Seven new directors of the Cumberland Taxpayers and Property Owners League were named in the annual election.

Elected to the board were Karl W. Bachman, Douglas R. Bowie, William R. Carscaden, Robert Littie Ebert, John E. Geare, Harry Kauffman and George M. Young.

Voting in the election were 62 of the 157 members of the league, which is a committee of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce.

Rotarians Hear Truckers' Views On Rate Issue

Members of the Cumberland Rotary Club were told yesterday by an American Trucking Association spokesman that proposed legislation to eliminate minimum rate controls on bulk and agricultural products would open the door to unlimited and uncontrolled rate warfare.

Robert L. McHale, Washington, D.C., Midwest public relations field representative for the association, said the proposal — hailed by the railroads and opposed by motor and water carriers — would result in crippling the motor carrier industry.

He said transportation finds itself in the spotlight of public attention today "because our transport associates — the railroads — have for the past 15 years, been repeating with greater and greater emphasis, that they are in trouble."

In recent years, he added, the suggestion has been broadened to include all transportation.

But he said four out of the five — airlines, barge lines, pipe lines and the trucking industry — are in good health and certainly not in deep trouble.

Trucking industry leaders, he said, point out that the illness of almost any single failing railroad can be charged to one or more of the following: unprofitable passenger service, excessive volume of short hauls and heavy investment in obsolete facilities.

He said railroad spokesmen have recognized that surplus railroad mileage is one of the factors and quoted a spokesman saying that less than 10 per cent of the miles of track carry half of the freight ton-miles while 67,000 miles of main line — about 30 per cent — carry only two per cent of the total freight business.

He said the trucking industry feels that before making drastic suggestions to Congress, rail management "should do something about a situation like this."

The proposal to eliminate minimum rate controls on bulk and agricultural products, he said, would take away controls which have brought order and consistency to the economy and would be "the first step to total deregulation."

Another Wheat Deal

OTTAWA (UPI)—The Canadian government Tuesday signed a $90 million long-term wheat agreement with Czechoslovakia calling for the sale of some 44,400,000 bushels to the Czechs during the next five years.

Helium and hydrogen are the gases with the greatest lifting power. Hydrogen is the more powerful, but helium is more satisfactory because it is non-inflammable and inert.

City Building Permits Total $5,085,330

Building permits with a declared value of $5,085,330 have been issued by the City of Cumberland this year.

This represents the biggest construction year in recent history and the end is not in sight, according to inquiries received by staffers of the City Engineering Department.

October construction permits alone were valued at $2,124,803.

Included were 12 residences valued at $132,000, a $1,000 residential garage, four carports at $2,225, a $1,972,478 addition to Memorial Hospital, five additions to residences at $2,100, a $10,000 addition to a business, and a $5,000 improvement to a business.

The October permits include 17 for new construction valued at $135,225 and eight addition and improvement projects estimated to cost $1,989,578.

City Hall workers reported there are good indications that 1964 will be a good construction year here.

They said plans for public housing and school construction, along with several commercial projects scheduled next year makes it virtually sure that 1964 will be another good construction year.

Court Probates Guy Propst Will

The will of Guy Propst, who ended his own life July 25 after first killing his two step-children, was probated yesterday in Allegany County Orphans Court.

Mr. Propst, who was a 47-year-old Baltimore Pike resident at the time, left his estate jointly to his parents, Charles Andrew and Lucy Propst, who live on Valley Road. Mr. Propst qualified as executor under a $1000 bond. The will was dated August 23, 1947.

A Lesson For The Capital

Springdale, Utah, population 300, has a spanking new 5,000-seat amphitheater. Sponsored by a five-county organization of civic clubs, it was completed in quick time and is completely paid for. Already, it has become a cultural mecca in southern Utah.

Washington has been trying for five years to raise funds for a national center of culture. The proposed venture has been boosted for years as a needed addition to the nation's capital.

Despite Congressional authorization for the culture center and cooperative efforts by government agencies throughout the country to raise the needed funds, only $10 million of the original $75 million estimated requirement has been received in five years. New pledges and contributions have all but ceased.

Why is it that a sparsely populated section of Utah is able to provide itself an amphitheater which would do credit to a city many times the size of Springdale, but Washington, to which millions of tourists and others flock annually, flops in a similar endeavor?

The reason is not difficult to fathom. Residents of southern Utah, like neighbors in rural areas everywhere, enjoy cooperating in a self-improvement project from which all will benefit. By contributing labor, materials and money, they built for $100,000 a site for concerts, pageants, light opera and other community purposes which couldn't be duplicated for many times that amount in New York, Philadelphia or Washington.

They will enjoy their amphitheater with the same enthusiasm they used to construct it. Unlike the residents of big cities, who have difficulty identifying themselves with a community so vast and complex, the people of southern Utah have not forgotten the enjoyment of accomplishing things for themselves.

Chicago Still Has 976 Unsolved Murders By Gangland Assassins

By Drew Pearson

CHICAGO — Since 1919, there have been 976 gangland murders in Chicago. Only two have been solved.

Almost 1,000 times, members of the underworld have invoked their own law against law enforcement officers or members of their illicit profession — exactly as Joe Valachi ha testified. And in all but two cases, the police, the courts, the FBI, and state prosecutors have been either powerless or unable to catch the murderer.

Three of the unsolved murders revolve around the case of James J. Ragen, head of the Continental Race Wire, who had given me permission to relay the underworld story to then Attorney General Tom Clark and who was bumped off by the mob in retaliation.

Three witnesses had seen the fruit truck pull up alongside Ragen's car at Pershing Road and State Street, had seen the tarpaulin cover pulled back and had watched three men machine-gun Ragen. Later they identified the assassins as members of Jake "Greasy Thumb" Guzik's mob.

What follows illustrates why underworld murderers are not apprehended and why Joe Valachi, 14 years after the Ragen murder, testified truthfully that crime conditions remain about the same.

Of the three witnesses to the murder, two recanted after visits from Guzik's lawyers. One witness, Lucius Davidson, stuck to his story, said he could identify the murderers. He was kept in jail 73 days, presumably to protect him from being murdered, but it ruined his health and his business.

One of the men he identified, an ex-convict named William Block, took a lie detector test but took it on his own terms. Halfway through the test he threw off the apparatus, tore up the graphs which recorded his reactions, and protested to the operator: "You're asking me the wrong questions."

Two members of the police force worked hard to solve the mystery—Lt. William J. Drury, with whom I was in contact, and Capt. Thomas Connelly. They suspected three men. But when they pushed the probe too hard they were dismissed from the police force and later indicted for conspiracy to secure false testimony.

Later, when Sen. Estes Kefauver began his investigation of underworld crime, Lt. Drury was one of those who supplied him information. This was in 1950, just as the Kefauver probe was starting to get under way.

On September 13 of that year, Drury telegraphed John E. Babb, Republican candidate for sheriff of Cook County, who had promised to clean up crime. Drury congratulated Babb and told him how when he had arrested Charles Fischetti, a leader of the old Capone mob, together with Frank Nitti, the opposing candidate for sheriff, Tubby Gilbert, had released them.

The telegram was sent on September 13 and published in the press on that date. Thirteen days later, the ex-police lieutenant who had bucked the underworld in Chicago put his car into his garage at 1843 Addison Street. He backed in, as he had done for many years. There were four shotgun blasts. When Mrs. Drury ran out, she found her husband, his head almost blown from his body.

On that same night, Marvin J. Bas, an attorney who had given Kefauver a report on the gambling syndicate, was killed as he returned home. Neither murder has ever been solved, nor will it be.

It doesn't pay to fight the underworld in Chicago.

White House Dinners

When General Eisenhower celebrated his 72d birthday at Hershey, Pa., each guest was given a page from the forthcoming Eisenhower book. The page was 264 from Capter XI, telling of Ike's inauguration of stag dinners. Eisenhower told how one stag dinner guest had tears running down his face as he departed.

"What's the matter?" Ike asked.

"Mr. President," was the reply, "I just wanted to tell you what it had meant to me to spend an evening and dine in the White House."

Dinners have not changed in the White House. Arthur Courshon, a Democrat and chairman of the Washington Federal Savings and Loan of Miami Beach, was invited by Kennedy to the dinner for Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia.

"It was one of the few occasions in my life when the anticipation was not greater than the event," Courshon wrote his daughter, Barbara, afterward.

"After we returned home and I returned my rented regalia and mother hung up her lovely long dress, I felt like Cinderella did when the carriage changed back into a pumpkin and the white horses returned to white mice."

Merry-Go-Round

Sen. Barry Goldwater has privately encouraged Robert Taft Jr., son of the late "Mr. Republican," now a Congressman from Ohio, to run for Vice President in 1964 . . . George Meany has sent word to all unions to launch a massive registration drive to get out the vote next year. He warned that the right wing will pump tremendous sums into the '64 election . . . Dick Nixon may deny he's a candidate for President but he has given his private phone number to various newsmen with an invitation to call him anytime they want a story . . . Henry Taylor, Ike's former ambassador to Switzerland, has written a book of fiction—his first. It will deal with a figure somewhat like Wendell Willkie seeking a Presidential nomination.

Congress And The Anti-Legislative Process

By Joseph Alsop

WASHINGTON

"If you can control your people, I can control mine."

Such was the reported answer of House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana when President Kennedy begged him to agree on a bipartisan civil rights bill. Halleck meant, in effect, that he could swing Rep. John Lindsay of New York into line if the President could do likewise with Democratic advocates of an extreme bill, like Rep. Robert W. Kastenmeier of Wisconsin.

The President then tried to do as Halleck suggested. The first attempt failed and, as these words are being written, the prospects of a later success do not appear bright. Thus the vital civil rights bill is directly imperiled by the sorriest display to date of the endemic disease of American liberalism, which is the liberals' fatal fondness for empty, competitive posturing.

The posturing began when the Administration's comprehensive and reasonable civil rights bill was referred to a liberal-heavy subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee. Attorney General Robert Kennedy pleaded with the Judiciary Committee Chairman, Rep. Emanuel Celler of New York. He and his aides besought the Leadership Conference, which includes white advocates of strong civil rights legislation like Walter Reuther as well as all the major Negro leaders.

To these men, and to the subcommittee members, the same story was told again and again. They were warned, over and over, that if the subcommittee voted extreme and unacceptable features into the Administration bill, this session of Congress was likely to end without passing any bill at all.

Chairman Celler in effect replied that he and his colleagues could safely indulge their penchant for striking noble attitudes, because the noble attitudes would then be struck out of the bill in the full committee. The other House members, and the members of the Leadership Conference, were no more rational than Rep. Celler — and considerably less forthright.

The result was the bill now before the House Judiciary Committee. It is a bill marked by features of extremely doubtful Constitutionality; and it is just about dead certain to die in the House Rules Committee or to be killed on the House floor.

Some of the liberals do not seem to be disconcerted by this prospect. Solid results have never greatly interested them. But poor Rep. Celler, who does want a solid result, is now wringing his hands in dismay. For the conservative Southern members of the House Judiciary Committee have welcomed the subcommittee's draft of the civil rights bill with smiles of delight; and they are not going to let it be toned down to the point of Congressional acceptability if they can possibly help it.

The Southerners could not help the committee's reporting a moderate and acceptable civil rights bill if committee members of the Kastenmaier-Lindsay stripe would join the committee's center-group. The bill would then be rewritten, as Celler at first expected. And it would therefore be handed on to the House Rules Committee with good hopes of being reported to the House floor, approved by the House, and sent to the Senate.

But the obstacle to this result is the one succinctly described to the President by Rep. Halleck. Halleck was only reasonable. After all, he can hardly be expected to ask his Republicans to join in toning down the subcommittee draft if Kastenmaier and other Democrats of his type are still to be allowed the pleasures of empty posturing. Republican self-denial must be matched by Democratic self-denial.

When the committee meets, the outcome will be known. Meanwhile, this desperately-needed piece of legislation is quite obviously endangered because the enemies of civil rights legislation are shrewd, tough men, while too many of the friends of civil rights are vain, empty, and impractical.

The pattern is an ancient one. But it is a new thing, nonetheless, for this pattern to prevent necessary action in a time of urgent, dangerous national crisis. It is easy to forget that on the civil rights front the present is such a time, but it is, all the same.

That was amply proven of the Negro leaders of the Leadership Conference. They refused to stand up for a moderate bill, although they well knew such a bill was the only kind that could pass, because they were too fearful of the Negro extremists. If there is no bill, the Negro extremists will take over; and if that happens, this old, unpardonable ulcer on the body politic will at once become malignant.

In sum, you could hardly find a better demonstration of the anti-legislative process, which has become the specialty of the U. S. Congress.

These Days

By John Chamberlain

Political Halloween

The late Senator Robert Taft has been quoted as saying, in a moment of rueful exasperation, that "Wall Street has chosen every Republican candidate for President since 1940." Mindful of this supposed power of the "Eastern liberal, international Republicans," the volunteers who have been doing the dog work throughout the country for the Draft Goldwater movement have kept looking over their shoulders for the great "Wall Street" hobgoblin. But, as the weeks go on, they are beginning to suspect that there is nothing there.

Says F. Clifton White, the national director of the Draft Goldwater Committee, "I'm starting to think that this business about the Chase Bank running the politics of the country is all a myth. We read about the Eastern liberal internationalists who are going to stop Goldwater, but we never come across their tracks."

Mr. White has a theory about this. Looking back at the campaign of 1952, when Taft was sidetracked by the Eisenhower movement, he admits that the "Easterners" wielded a lot of political power in those days. But, as he says, that power was a blend of two elements. There was, first, the power of money, used to finance the anti-Taft forces in crucial states. "But in addition to this," he points out, "there was the great political machine operated by Thomas Dewey. This machine has been dismantled, and nothing has been assembled to take its place."

Mr. White thinks it unlikely that the "money power" has the time to finance a new political machine in the few months that remain between now and the Republican convention of 1964. Moreover, he is beginning to doubt that it even cares to. In the first place, the day has passed when a big New York bank could call up a bank in Wichita, Kansas, or Amarillo, Texas, and hint that the "boys" had better get behind so-and-so's candidacy or a few loans might be called.

"Today," says Mr. White, "the bank in Wichita would say to Wall Street, 'What can we do for you today? If you need some money, we've got a lot of cash to spare. Can we make you a loan?' "

The fact that the flush Texas and California banks no longer depend on "Wall Street" means that local business men can no longer be coerced by the so-called "Eastern, internationalist, liberal" Republican conclave.

But there is even more to the story than this.

"The truth would seem to be that a lot of people in 'Wall Street' like Goldwater," says Mr. White. "There's the phenomenon of the Greenwich Republicans in Connecticut. They have been part of the 'Eastern, internationalist' group. But they are very much for Goldwater at this time."

So, between the erosion of their power to dictate to bankers in Missouri and Montana and their admiration for Barry Goldwater, the "Easterners" have not seen fit even to attempt the organization of the equivalent of the old Thomas Dewey political machine to put over an anti-Goldwater candidate.

Things may change, of course, if Goldwater stumbles in the primaries by offending grass roots sentiment. But if Goldwater falters, "Wall Street" will hardly step in to dictate a successor candidate. The new breed of Republican state chairman, as Mr. White points out, consists of young men like Bill Walters of the State of Washington, Jac Shaw of Nevada, Joe Skeen of New Mexico, Peter O'Donnell of Texas, Tom Hall of Florida, John Grenier of Alabama, and Bob Stewart of Indiana. These men are nobody's stooges. Nor is Ray Bliss of Ohio or Dave Nichols of Maine, who are a little older than most of the new breed.

The fact is that the power in the Republican Party today has become rather evenly diffused throughout fifty states. If it decides that Goldwater is not the man to take on John F. Kennedy, it will not be stampeded by the equivalent of the Willkie blitz forces of 1940. It will not accept a General Lucius Clay, for example, merely because the "liberal East" likes a military hero. Clay would have to sell himself to the Republican delegates by exerting his own charm on them directly. As for Nelson Rockefeller, his money will count less in the primaries than the ability of his wife Happy to charm the local matrons into forgetting their prejudices about divorce.

The old rules are off. The new rules are in course of being formulated. We shall see what we shall see.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

MUD SLINGING SEASON — National politicos are beginning to hit below belt a little early in the 1964 presidential political season. It's understandable, but a little disconcerting nonetheless, to have the air full of invective even before either party has selected its candidate.

Unfortunately, some of the electorate still vote their emotions instead of their enlightened best interests—and no one knows this better than the professional politician.

Republicans are busy attacking the "Kennedy Dynasty," drawing invidious comparisons between the personal relationships of the previous presidential couples and the present occupants of the White House, circulating pointed jokes about Joe Kennedy's wealth, Bobby Kennedy's "arrogance" and "immaturity," and even dragging the names of little Caroline and John Jr. into the free-for-all.

Democrats aren't too quiet either. They're busy keeping New York's Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's divorce and remarriage in the political discussion arena, trying to depict Sen. Barry Goldwater as a somewhat retarded Neanderthal Man, and taking sideswipes at Richard M. Nixon, just on the off-hand chance that he may develop into a Republican darkhorse candidate.

The other evening, William E. Miller, chairman of the Republican National Committee, took the occasion of a birthday dinner for Eisenhower to remark: "Do you recall—any of you—Sinatra types infesting 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue in the Eisenhower days? Or twisting in the historic East Ballroom? Or wild swimming pool antics shocking to all the country? Or all night parties in foreign lands?"

No student of political science can condone these efforts—on the part of both parties—to gain political advantage by stirring up voter hatred and prejudices. Some day it may be that this hoary ploy will boomerang on some deserving politician and the techniques of campaigning will undergo the most profound change since advent of radio and television.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

The man's voice was tired. It came through the operator's headset as a whisper. He said he was having a heart attack, but he just couldn't remember his doctor's name. He was alone, and the name would not come to mind. The operator worked for a telephone answering service. Her heart began to pound, but she talked soothingly to the man, asking questions, working up clues, and studying records of messages to this man.

She found the doctor. In time, too. Harry Lefcort was talking about it. He and his brothers Bill and Dan are partial to phone operators, probably because they own the Affiliated Telephone Answering Service in New York. It is one of the biggest in the country, and employs 30 operators and 20 supervisors.

Lefcort is 64, a good-looking grandfather who spent 30 years in the wrong business — manufacturing men's clothing. He was tired of selling and traveling and eating while running. A dozen years ago, he started his telephone answering service. Now he runs between Affiliated's seven offices, which range the length of Manhattan, and he has no time to eat.

Until now, an answering service has been a mystery to me. When I phone a doctor, a dentist, a lawyer, a friend, I am always disappointed when an answering service cuts in. This leads me to believe that the operators must be abused. I'm sure that they bring out the worst in the person at the other end of the wire.

Affiliated's operators average 6,500 calls per day. They permit the phone to ring three or four times. If the client doesn't answer, they do. At the switchboards, a red light means that a client pays for 24-hour service; an amber light is an 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. client. If the person called picks up the phone, the answering service operator is automatically cut off.

The 24-hour patron pays $19.50 a month, plus $2.50 to the phone company for the extension between his phone and the answering service. There is a third service, for clients who do not live in New York, but want a New York directory listing. This one is used by actors and sales organizations, and is really a message service.

Beside each switchboard plug there is a strip which tells the operator whether to say "This is Dr. Brown's residence," or "This is OLeander 4-7411." The operator always asks, as politely as possible, who is calling. Then she asks for the caller's phone number. After that, if there is a message, she writes it on a message pad. These are stacked and read to the client when he returns to his home, or his office.

Lefcourt, who has a lot of sympathy for the aged and chronically ill, has a special service for shut-ins. This is patronized largely by old widows. At certain times of the day and night, the operator calls these people to ask how they feel, and to chat a moment. For these clients, the operator always has the phone number of a doctor and next of kin.

One man told Lefcort he wanted Affiliated's service on a big scale. He was selling sewing machines and he expected 3,000 calls a week. All the operator had to do was to take the caller's name and phone number, and phone it to his office. He would call back at once. It looked like a big account to add to the 4,000 regular subscribers and 4,000 part-timers.

A wise telephone operator said: "Mr. Lefcort, you're making a big mistake." He wanted to know how. "If this man is in his office, and he can call right back, why does he need us? And why is it he doesn't want us to take the address of the caller — just the phone number? I know why. He's a bookie. He's using us to reroute his suckers."

The lady was right. An investigation proved that the client had no sewing machines and wouldn't recognize one if it was in bed with him. Sometimes, though, the answering service takes phone calls and orders for department stores, especially on big mail order sales.

The operators sit the long hours at 40 switchboards, waiting for lights to go on. Most of the calls are prosaic, and many of the calls begin with: "How come he's never in his office and I got to go through you? Tell him to call Larry at once, right away, now." Click.

Now and then, a little drama comes into the lives of the operators. One night a woman phoned and asked for her doctor. He was out. She said that she had run out of sleeping pills, and the pharmacist wouldn't give her any. If the doctor didn't get to her house quickly, she would kill herself. The phone operator found the doctor. He too made it in time.

A young girl stopped by and told Lefcort that her mother was a shut-in, requiring 24-hour help. However, they had no money, no friends. Harry Lefcort helped her to get a job, and asked his phone operators to call the mother when they weren't busy.

Within a week, the old lady had dozens of new friends whom she never met. The daughter worked; the mother felt that she was never alone. She gossiped to her heart's content.

The telephone operator is a faceless, nameless voice. For most of us, she's our bridge to the rest of the world. . .

New Important Advance In Smallpox Protection

By Theodore R. Van Dellen

A new prophylactic treatment of smallpox may be the most important advance in this disease since Edward Jenner (1749-1823) discovered the vaccine. The chemical in question, Morboran, represents more than a decade of research work on the part of British and American scientists. This drug reduced the incidence of smallpox 96 per cent in India, where the infection is prevalent.

The drug is aimed at the person who comes into contact with a victim and who is susceptible either because he never was vaccinated or the procedure was done many years ago. Prior to the advent of Marboran, health authorities vaccinated these individuals immediately but all too often this was done too late in the incubation period to prevent the illness. As a result, they were condemned to a severe and possibly fatal attack of smallpox.

Marbaran will change all this. A report in The Lancet, a British medical journal, says every smallpox patient admitted to the infectious disease hospital, Tondiarpet, Madras, India, between February and July of 1963, was questioned about those who came into contact with him after the rash developed.

A total of 2,227 susceptible persons were found and vaccinated. (Many others were excluded because they had had smallpox or refused to cooperate.) Of the total, 1,101 contacts were given Marboran and the remainder were used as controls. All were visited 16 days later to determine what had happened. There were three mild cases of smallpox among the treated group. In contrast, 78 cases occurred with 12 deaths among the 1,126 contacts who had been vaccinated but not treated with Marboran.

The drug appeared to be most effective among contacts who never had been vaccinated. This is fortunate because in some western countries, many persons have not been vaccinated and epidemics have appeared in the last few years. Marboran also is effective when the contact is not detected soon enough for successful revaccination to offer any chance on protection.

EXERCISE IN HEART TEST

B. R. writes: What shows up on an electrocardiogram while exercising that is not shown on this test while resting?

REPLY

In some persons, especially those with narrowed coronary arteries, changes in certain waves are noted in the electrocardiogram during exercise. This is used as a test in angina Pectoris.

ORAL CONTRACEPTIVE

Mrs. B. writes: Do the birth control pills delay menstruation? If so, how can a woman tell if she is pregnant?

REPLY

These pills should not delay menstruation. They prevent ovulation and are 99.9 per cent effective when used as directed. As a result, other reasons for the delay should be considered.

SOUTH PACIFIC WORMS

E. L. V. writes: Is there a drug to cure filaria?

REPLY

Yes, if you refer to the most common form of filariasis, usually called elephantiasis. It is confined largely to the far east. This form infestation is treated with Hetrozan or Caparsolate.

VEINS NOT INVOLVED

T. B. writes: Does smoking harm varicose veins of the legs?

REPLY

No. But the arteries are constricted by nicotine in a certain percentage of the population.

TOMORROW: Cold, white fingers.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of diseases will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

Former Mayor John F. Hylan suffered a mirror debacle the day he delivered a speech that he had not bothered to read over in advance. Along about Page Five he came to one phrase that read, "This reminds me of my favorite story about a traveling salesman."

It developed that the Mayor had never heard the joke before, and he laughed so hard his glasses fell off. The chairman of the dinner finished the speech for him.

Pierre Boule, the man who wrote "Bridge on the River Kwai," has just had a new book published in France called "The Planet of the Monkeys," which will be put on the presses in America as soon as it is translated. Boule's new story is a shocker. The time is several hundred years hence—and mankind has retrogressed to the pithecanthropoid stage — a creature with no brains to speak of, orating from instinct. The monkeys, meanwhile, have become so smart from imitating humans and playing parts in innumerable experiments that they now run the works. They have put the men into cages, and it's the monkeys who are conducting the experiments on humans. Pretty prospect to contemplate!

Despite Congressional authorization for the culture center and cooperative efforts by government agencies throughout the country to raise the needed funds, only $10 million of the original $75 million estimated requirement has been received in five years. New pledges and contributions have all but ceased.

Why is it that a sparsely populated section of Utah is able to provide itself an amphitheater which would do credit to a city many times the size of Springdale, but Washington, to which millions of tourists and others flock annually, flops in a similar endeavor?

The reason is not difficult to fathom. Residents of southern Utah, like neighbors in rural areas everywhere, enjoy cooperating in a self-improvement project from which all will benefit. By contributing labor, materials and money, they built for $100,000 a site for concerts, pageants, light opera and other community purposes which couldn't be duplicated for many times that amount in New York, Philadelphia or Washington.

They will enjoy their amphitheater with the same enthusiasm they used to construct it. Unlike the residents of big cities, who have difficulty identifying themselves with a community so vast and complex, the people of southern Utah have not forgotten the enjoyment of accomplishing things for themselves.

These Days

By John Chamberlain

Political Halloween

The late Senator Robert Taft has been quoted as saying, in a moment of rueful exasperation, that "Wall Street has chosen every Republican candidate for President since 1940." Mindful of this supposed power of the "Eastern liberal, international Republicans," the volunteers who have been doing the dog work throughout the country for the Draft Goldwater movement have kept looking over their shoulders for the great "Wall Street" hobgoblin. But, as the weeks go on, they are beginning to suspect that there is nothing there.

Says F. Clifton White, the national director of the Draft Goldwater Committee, "I'm starting to think that this business about the Chase Bank running the politics of the country is all a myth. We read about the Eastern liberal internationalists who are going to stop Goldwater, but we never come across their tracks."

Mr. White has a theory about this. Looking back at the campaign of 1952, when Taft was sidetracked by the Eisenhower movement, he admits that the "Easterners" wielded a lot of political power in those days. But, as he says, that power was a blend of two elements. There was, first, the power of money, used to finance the anti-Taft forces in crucial states. "But in addition to this," he points out, "there was the great political machine operated by Thomas Dewey. This machine has been dismantled, and nothing has been assembled to take its place."

Mr. White thinks it unlikely that the "money power" has the time to finance a new political machine in the few months that remain between now and the Republican convention of 1964. Moreover, he is beginning to doubt that it even cares to. In the first place, the day has passed when a big New York bank could call up a bank in Wichita, Kansas, or Amarillo, Texas, and hint that the "boys" had better get behind so-and-so's candidacy or a few loans might be called.

"Today," says Mr. White, "the bank in Wichita would say to Wall Street, 'What can we do for you today? If you need some money, we've got a lot of cash to spare. Can we make you a loan?'"

The fact that the flush Texas and California banks no longer depend on "Wall Street" means that local business men can no longer be coerced by the so-called "Eastern, internationalist, liberal" Republican conclave.

But there is even more to the story than this.

"The truth would seem to be that a lot of people in 'Wall Street' like Goldwater," says Mr. White. "There's the phenomenon of the Greenwich Republicans in Connecticut. They have been part of the 'Eastern, internationalist' group. But they are very much for Goldwater at this time."

So, between the erosion of their power to dictate to bankers in Missouri and Montana and their admiration for Barry Goldwater, the "Easterners" have not seen fit even to attempt the organization of the equivalent of the old Thomas Dewey political machine to put over an anti-Goldwater candidate.

Things may change, of course, if Goldwater stumbles in the primaries by offending grass roots sentiment. But if Goldwater falters, "Wall Street" will hardly step in to dictate a successor candidate. The new breed of Republican state chairman, as Mr. White points out, consists of young men like Bill Walters of the State of Washington, Jac Shaw of Nevada, Joe Skeen of New Mexico, Peter O'Donnell of Texas, Tom Hall of Florida, John Grenier of Alabama, and Bob Stewart of Indiana. These men are nobody's stooges. Nor is Ray Bliss of Ohio or Dave Nichols of Maine, who are a little older than most of the new breed.

The fact is that the power in the Republican Party today has become rather evenly diffused throughout fifty states. If it decides that Goldwater is not the man to take on John F. Kennedy, it will not be stampeded by the equivalent of the Willkie blitz forces of 1940. It will not accept a General Lucius Clay, for example, merely because the "liberal East" likes a military hero. Clay would have to sell himself to the Republican delegates by exerting his own charm on them directly. As for Nelson Rockefeller, his money will count less in the primaries than the ability of his wife Happy to charm the local matrons into forgetting their prejudices about divorce.

The old rules are off. The new rules are in course of being formulated. We shall see what we shall see.

Chicago Still Has 976 Unsolved Murders By Gangland Assassins

By Drew Pearson

CHICAGO — Since 1919, there have been 976 gangland murders in Chicago. Only two have been solved.

Almost 1,000 times, members of the underworld have invoked their own law against law enforcement officers or members of their illicit profession — exactly as Joe Valachi ha testified. And in all but two cases, the police, the courts, the FBI, and state prosecutors have been either powerless or unable to catch the murderer.

Three of the unsolved murders revolve around the case of James J. Ragen, head of the Continental Race Wire, who had given me permission to relay the underworld story to then Attorney General Tom Clark and who was bumped off by the mob in retaliation.

Three witnesses had seen the fruit truck pull up alongside Ragen's car at Pershing Road and State Street, had seen the tarpaulin cover pulled back and had watched three men machine-gun Ragen. Later they identified the assassins as members of Jake "Greasy Thumb" Guzik's mob.

What follows illustrates why underworld murderers are not apprehended and why Joe Valachi, 14 years after the Ragen murder, testified truthfully that crime conditions remain about the same.

Of the three witnesses to the murder, two recanted after visits from Guzik's lawyers. One witness, Lucius Davidson, stuck to his story, said he could identify the murderers. He was kept in jail 73 days, presumably to protect him from being murdered, but it ruined his health and his business.

One of the men he identified, an ex-convict named William Block, took a lie detector test but took it on his own terms. Halfway through the test he threw off the apparatus, tore up the graphs which recorded his reactions, and protested to the operator: "You're asking me the wrong questions."

Two members of the police force worked hard to solve the mystery—Lt. William J. Drury, with whom I was in contact, and Capt. Thomas Connelly. They suspected three men. But when they pushed the probe too hard they were dismissed from the police force and later indicted for conspiracy to secure false testimony.

Later, when Sen. Estes Kefauver began his investigation of underworld crime, Lt. Drury was one of those who supplied him information. This was in 1950, just as the Kefauver probe was starting to get under way.

On September 13 of that year, Drury telegraphed John E. Babb, Republican candidate for sheriff of Cook County, who had promised to clean up crime. Drury congratulated Babb and told him how when he had arrested Charles Fischetti, a leader of the old Capone mob, together with Frank Nitti, the opposing candidate for sheriff, Tubby Gilbert, had released them.

The telegram was sent on September 13 and published in the press on that date. Thirteen days later, the ex-police lieutenant who had bucked the underworld in Chicago put his car into his garage at 1843 Addison Street. He backed in, as he had done for many years. There were four shotgun blasts. When Mrs. Drury ran out, she found her husband, his head almost blown from his body.

On that same night, Marvin J. Bas, an attorney who had given Kefauver a report on the gambling syndicate, was killed as he returned home. Neither murder has ever been solved, nor will it be.

It doesn't pay to fight the underworld in Chicago.

White House Dinners

When General Eisenhower celebrated his 72d birthday at Hershey, Pa., each guest was given a page from the forthcoming Eisenhower book. The page was 264 from Capter XI, telling of Ike's inauguration of stag dinners. Eisenhower told how one stag dinner guest had tears running down his face as he departed.

"What's the matter?" Ike asked.

"Mr. President," was the reply, "I just wanted to tell you what it had meant to me to spend an evening and dine in the White House."

Dinners have not changed in the White House. Arthur Courshon, a Democrat and chairman of the Washington Federal Savings and Loan of Miami Beach, was invited by Kennedy to the dinner for Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia.

"It was one of the few occasions in my life when the anticipation was not greater than the event," Courshon wrote his daughter, Barbara, afterward.

"After we returned home and I returned my rented regalia and mother hung up her lovely long dress, I felt like Cinderella did when the carriage changed back into a pumpkin and the white horses returned to white mice."

Merry-Go-Round

Sen. Barry Goldwater has privately encouraged Robert Taft Jr., son of the late "Mr. Republican," now a Congressman from Ohio, to run for Vice President in 1964 . . . George Meany has sent word to all unions to launch a massive registration drive to get out the vote next year. He warned that the right wing will pump tremendous sums into the '64 election . . . Dick Nixon may deny he's a candidate for President but he has given his private phone number to various newsmen with an invitation to call him anytime they want a story . . . Henry Taylor, Ike's former ambassador to Switzerland, has written a book of fiction—his first. It will deal with a figure somewhat like Wendell Willkie seeking a Presidential nomination.

Congress And The Anti-Legislative Process

By Joseph Alsop

WASHINGTON

"If you can control your people, I can control mine."

Such was the reported answer of House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana when President Kennedy begged him to agree on a bipartisan civil rights bill. Halleck meant, in effect, that he could swing Rep. John Lindsay of New York into line if the President could do likewise with Democratic advocates of an extreme bill, like Rep. Robert W. Kastenmeier of Wisconsin.

The President then tried to do as Halleck suggested. The first attempt failed and, as these words are being written, the prospects of a later success do not appear bright. Thus the vital civil rights bill is directly imperiled by the sorriest display to date of the endemic disease of American liberalism, which is the liberals' fatal fondness for empty, competitive posturing.

The posturing began when the Administration's comprehensive and reasonable civil rights bill was referred to a liberal-heavy subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee. Attorney General Robert Kennedy pleaded with the Judiciary Committee Chairman, Rep. Emanuel Celler of New York. He and his aides besought the Leadership Conference, which includes white advocates of strong civil rights legislation like Walter Reuther as well as all the major Negro leaders.

To these men, and to the subcommittee members, the same story was told again and again. They were warned, over and over, that if the subcommittee voted extreme and unacceptable features into the Administration bill, this session of Congress was likely to end without passing any bill at all.

Chairman Celler in effect replied that he and his colleagues could safely indulge their penchant for striking noble attitudes, because the noble attitudes would then be struck out of the bill in the full committee. The other House members, and the members of the Leadership Conference, were no more rational than Rep. Celler — and considerably less forthright.

The result was the bill now before the House Judiciary Committee. It is a bill marked by features of extremely doubtful Constitutionality; and it is just about dead certain to die in the House Rules Committee or to be killed on the House floor.

Some of the liberals do not seem to be disconcerted by this prospect. Solid results have never greatly interested them. But poor Rep. Celler, who does want a solid result, is now wringing his hands in dismay. For the conservative Southern members of the House Judiciary Committee have welcomed the subcommittee's draft of the civil rights bill with smiles of delight; and they are not going to let it be toned down to the point of Congressional acceptability if they can possibly help it.

The Southerners could not help the committee's reporting a moderate and acceptable civil rights bill if committee members of the Kastenmaier-Lindsay stripe would join the committee's center-group. The bill would then be rewritten, as Celler at first expected. And it would therefore be handed on to the House Rules Committee with good hopes of being reported to the House floor, approved by the House, and sent to the Senate.

But the obstacle to this result is the one succinctly described to the President by Rep. Halleck. Halleck was only reasonable. After all, he can hardly be expected to ask his Republicans to join in toning down the subcommittee draft if Kastenmaier and other Democrats of his type are still to be allowed the pleasures of empty posturing. Republican self-denial must be matched by Democratic self-denial.

When the committee meets, the outcome will be known. Meanwhile, this desperately-needed piece of legislation is quite obviously endangered because the enemies of civil rights legislation are shrewd, tough men, while too many of the friends of civil rights are vain, empty, and impractical.

The pattern is an ancient one. But it is a new thing, nonetheless, for this pattern to prevent necessary action in a time of urgent, dangerous national crisis. It is easy to forget that on the civil rights front the present is such a time, but it is, all the same.

That was amply proven of the Negro leaders of the Leadership Conference. They refused to stand up for a moderate bill, although they well knew such a bill was the only kind that could pass, because they were too fearful of the Negro extremists. If there is no bill, the Negro extremists will take over; and if that happens, this old, unpardonable ulcer on the body politic will at once become malignant.

In sum, you could hardly find a better demonstration of the anti-legislative process, which has become the specialty of the U. S. Congress.

Inside Washington

MUD SLINGING SEASON — National politicos are beginning to hit below belt a little early in the 1964 presidential political season. It's understandable, but a little disconcerting nonetheless, to have the air full of invective even before either party has selected its candidate.

Unfortunately, some of the electorate still vote their emotions instead of their enlightened best interests—and no one knows this better than the professional politician.

Republicans are busy attacking the "Kennedy Dynasty," drawing invidious comparisons between the personal relationships of the previous presidential couples and the present occupants of the White House, circulating pointed jokes about Joe Kennedy's wealth, Bobby Kennedy's "arrogance" and "immaturity," and even dragging the names of little Caroline and John Jr. into the free-for-all.

Democrats aren't too quiet either. They're busy keeping New York's Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's divorce and remarriage in the political discussion arena, trying to depict Sen. Barry Goldwater as a somewhat retarded Neanderthal Man, and taking sideswipes at Richard M. Nixon, just on the off-hand chance that he may develop into a Republican darkhorse candidate.

The other evening, William E. Miller, chairman of the Republican National Committee, took the occasion of a birthday dinner for Eisenhower to remark: "Do you recall—any of you—Sinatra types infesting 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue in the Eisenhower days? Or twisting in the historic East Ballroom? Or wild swimming pool antics shocking to all the country? Or all night parties in foreign lands?"

No student of political science can condone these efforts—on the part of both parties—to gain political advantage by stirring up voter hatred and prejudices. Some day it may be that this hoary ploy will boomerang on some deserving politician and the techniques of campaigning will undergo the most profound change since advent of radio and television.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

The man's voice was tired. It came through the operator's headset as a whisper. He said he was having a heart attack, but he just couldn't remember his doctor's name. He was alone, and the name would not come to mind. The operator worked for a telephone answering service. Her heart began to pound, but she talked soothingly to the man, asking questions, working up clues, and studying records of messages to this man.

She found the doctor. In time, too. Harry Lefcort was talking about it. He and his brothers Bill and Dan are partial to phone operators, probably because they own the Affiliated Telephone Answering Service in New York. It is one of the biggest in the country, and employs 30 operators and 20 supervisors.

Lefcort is 64, a good-looking grandfather who spent 30 years in the wrong business — manufacturing men's clothing. He was tired of selling and traveling and eating while running. A dozen years ago, he started his telephone answering service. Now he runs between Affiliated's seven offices, which range the length of Manhattan, and he has no time to eat.

Until now, an answering service has been a mystery to me. When I phone a doctor, a dentist, a lawyer, a friend, I am always disappointed when an answering service cuts in. This leads me to believe that the operators must be abused. I'm sure that they bring out the worst in the person at the other end of the wire.

Affiliated's operators average 6,500 calls per day. They permit the phone to ring three or four times. If the client doesn't answer, they do. At the switchboards, a red light means that a client pays for 24-hour service; an amber light is an 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. client. If the person called picks up the phone, the answering service operator is automatically cut off.

The 24-hour patron pays $19.50 a month, plus $2.50 to the phone company for the extension between his phone and the answering service. There is a third service, for clients who do not live in New York, but want a New York directory listing. This one is used by actors and sales organizations, and is really a message service.

Beside each switchboard plug there is a strip which tells the operator whether to say "This is Dr. Brown's residence," or "This is OLeander 4-7411." The operator always asks, as politely as possible, who is calling. Then she asks for the caller's phone number. After that, if there is a message, she writes it on a message pad. These are stacked and read to the client when he returns to his home, or his office.

Lefcourt, who has a lot of sympathy for the aged and chronically ill, has a special service for shut-ins. This is patronized largely by old widows. At certain times of the day and night, the operator calls these people to ask how they feel, and to chat a moment. For these clients, the operator always has the phone number of a doctor and next of kin.

One man told Lefcort he wanted Affiliated's service on a big scale. He was selling sewing machines and he expected 3,000 calls a week. All the operator had to do was to take the caller's name and phone number, and phone it to his office. He would call back at once. It looked like a big account to add to the 4,000 regular subscribers and 4,000 part-timers.

A wise telephone operator said: "Mr. Lefcort, you're making a big mistake." He wanted to know how. "If this man is in his office, and he can call right back, why does he need us? And why is it he doesn't want us to take the address of the caller — just the phone number? I know why. He's a bookie. He's using us to reroute his suckers."

The lady was right. An investigation proved that the client had no sewing machines and wouldn't recognize one if it was in bed with him. Sometimes, though, the answering service takes phone calls and orders for department stores, especially on big mail order sales.

The operators sit the long hours at 40 switchboards, waiting for lights to go on. Most of the calls are prosaic, and many of the calls begin with: "How come he's never in his office and I got to go through you? Tell him to call Larry at once, right away, now." Click.

Now and then, a little drama comes into the lives of the operators. One night a woman phoned and asked for her doctor. He was out. She said that she had run out of sleeping pills, and the pharmacist wouldn't give her any. If the doctor didn't get to her house quickly, she would kill herself. The phone operator found the doctor. He too made it in time.

A young girl stopped by and told Lefcort that her mother was a shut-in, requiring 24-hour help. However, they had no money, no friends. Harry Lefcort helped her to get a job, and asked his phone operators to call the mother when they weren't busy.

Within a week, the old lady had dozens of new friends whom she never met. The daughter worked; the mother felt that she was never alone. She gossiped to her heart's content.

The telephone operator is a faceless, nameless voice. For most of us, she's our bridge to the rest of the world. . .

New Important Advance In Smallpox Protection

By Theodore R. Van Dellen

A new prophylactic treatment of smallpox may be the most important advance in this disease since Edward Jenner (1749-1823) discovered the vaccine. The chemical in question, Morboran, represents more than a decade of research work on the part of British and American scientists. This drug reduced the incidence of smallpox 96 per cent in India, where the infection is prevalent.

The drug is aimed at the person who comes into contact with a victim and who is susceptible either because he never was vaccinated or the procedure was done many years ago. Prior to the advent of Marboran, health authorities vaccinated these individuals immediately but all too often this was done too late in the incubation period to prevent the illness. As a result, they were condemned to a severe and possibly fatal attack of smallpox.

Marbaran will change all this. A report in The Lancet, a British medical journal, says every smallpox patient admitted to the infectious disease hospital, Tondiarpet, Madras, India, between February and July of 1963, was questioned about those who came into contact with him after the rash developed.

A total of 2,227 susceptible persons were found and vaccinated. (Many others were excluded because they had had smallpox or refused to cooperate.) Of the total, 1,101 contacts were given Marboran and the remainder were used as controls. All were visited 16 days later to determine what had happened. There were three mild cases of smallpox among the treated group. In contrast, 78 cases occurred with 12 deaths among the 1,126 contacts who had been vaccinated but not treated with Marboran.

The drug appeared to be most effective among contacts who never had been vaccinated. This is fortunate because in some western countries, many persons have not been vaccinated and epidemics have appeared in the last few years. Marboran also is effective when the contact is not detected soon enough for successful revaccination to offer any chance on protection.

EXERCISE IN HEART TEST

B. R. writes: What shows up on an electrocardiogram while exercising that is not shown on this test while resting?

REPLY

In some persons, especially those with narrowed coronary arteries, changes in certain waves are noted in the electrocardiogram during exercise. This is used as a test in angina Pectoris.

ORAL CONTRACEPTIVE

Mrs. B. writes: Do the birth control pills delay menstruation? If so, how can a woman tell if she is pregnant?

REPLY

These pills should not delay menstruation. They prevent ovulation and are 99.9 per cent effective when used as directed. As a result, other reasons for the delay should be considered.

SOUTH PACIFIC WORMS

E. L. V. writes: Is there a drug to cure filaria?

REPLY

Yes, if you refer to the most common form of filariasis, usually called elephantiasis. It is confined largely to the far east. This form infestation is treated with Hetrozan or Caparsolate.

VEINS NOT INVOLVED

T. B. writes: Does smoking harm varicose veins of the legs?

REPLY

No. But the arteries are constricted by nicotine in a certain percentage of the population.

TOMORROW: Cold, white fingers.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of diseases will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

Former Mayor John F. Hylan suffered a mirror debacle the day he delivered a speech that he had not bothered to read over in advance. Along about Page Five he came to one phrase that read, "This reminds me of my favorite story about a traveling salesman."

It developed that the Mayor had never heard the joke before, and he laughed so hard his glasses fell off. The chairman of the dinner finished the speech for him.

Pierre Boule, the man who wrote "Bridge on the River Kwai," has just had a new book published in France called "The Planet of the Monkeys," which will be put on the presses in America as soon as it is translated. Boule's new story is a shocker. The time is several hundred years hence—and mankind has retrogressed to the pithecanthropoid stage — a creature with no brains to speak of, orating from instinct. The monkeys, meanwhile, have become so smart from imitating humans and playing parts in innumerable experiments that they now run the works. They have put the men into cages, and it's the monkeys who are conducting the experiments on humans. Pretty prospect to contemplate!

Midland Audit Shows Surplus For Last Year

Current Tax Payments Good

MIDLAND — The audit report of the Town of Midland, for the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1963, has been accepted by the town council.

Submitted by Lowell M. Sowers Jr. of Frostburg, certified public accountant, the report shows a total income of $11,848. This consists of locally produced taxes etc. of $3,961; state allocated income, $5,051; and county allocated income of $2,836.

Operating expenses for the year totaled $10,988, leaving a net profit or surplus at the end of the year of $860.

Operations include, general government $2,252; public safety, $1,733; streets and highways, $5,148; recreation $692 and sanitation $1,163.

Mr. Sowers wrote his congratulations to the town clerk, John Kesner, town treasurer Edwin Winters and to tax collector Hazel Taylor for the splendid condition of all town books and records and the fine cooperation of local officials in the work of making the audit.

The tax collector's report filed with council last week, shows that for the current fiscal year, 65 per cent of the total real and personal property levy has been collected since September 1. A five per cent discount is allowed on all local taxes paid in September; four per cent for payment in October; and three per cent if payment is made in November. Beginning November 30, an interest charge of one-half of one per cent each month or fraction thereof is imposed.

Keyser Kindergarten Children Thrill At Visit Of Physician, Veterinarian

KEYSER — Two members of the medical profession visited students of the Keyser Kindergarten last week in connection with their study of "Community Helpers." Dr. Thomas From, D.V.M., and Dr. Clinton Rogers, M.D., talked about their work and answered questions of the 34 youngsters.

Dr. From, speaking on Monday, reminded the children that animals can't speak when they are ill and that it is completely the veterinarian's responsibility to find out what hurts the animal. He showed the thermometer and stethoscope with which he took the temperatures and listened to the internal organs of the animals.

The children expressed interest in finding out if Dr. From could "doctor a bobcat" after having seen a television program about bobcats on Sunday and the veterinarian told them that he was trained to treat all kinds of animals. He treats mostly pets in his office, however, but also visits farms to treat cows and horses and other animals which cannot be brought in.

A personal story of a "skunk patient" entertained the youngsters as Dr. From told them how he had put the little patient to sleep in order to remove the bag which causes the odor so that the skunk could then be used for a pet. When the animal woke up before the operation was completed, the veterinarian and entire neighborhood were all keenly aware of the "guest" at the animal hospital.

Dr. Rogers visited the kindergarten on Thursday and used Paul Crites, a member of the class as a typical patient. As Dr. Rogers examined the youth's ears, eyes, nose, and throat, he explained about the instruments that he was using and what he could find out from his examination.

Each student was given a chance to be the doctor and to listen to Paul's heartbeats with the stethoscope, and the patient was quite thrilled at hearing the sounds of his own heart. Eyes popped as Paul's reflexes were checked and his chest further examined.

Through Dr. Rogers' talk and demonstration the children lost much of their fear of innoculations as they were shown a plastic hypodermic syringe and told how it works. The instrument was later presented to the class and considered the "prize for the day" by the youngsters.

Sport Talk with Troxell by Ted

WHOLEHEARTED ENTHUSIASM prevailed throughout the Tri-Towns last year during the campaign to inaugurate varsity football at Bruce High School.

None of the glamour or novelty has seemed to wear off since the Bulldogs played their first game in September, 1962, and the schedule for next season readily indicates the Westernport school is not lacking in ambition.

Bruce High will open the 1964 campaign against Allegany in a night game at the Stadium. A two-year contract has been signed by the two schools, with the 1965 contest also scheduled for the local arena.

Pete Ladygo, who was faced with the rugged task of developing a football team from a group of willing but totally inexperienced athletes, has labored long and hard to make the highly sought gridiron program a success.

Coach Ladygo is certain that in a few years his teams will be able to compete with any of the area powers, and he is obviously out to put his claim to the test in a hurry.

Since making their debut the Bulldogs have won only two games and tied one in 15 starts, which makes the series with the always tough Campers appear to be a gross mismatch.

BUT THOSE WHO REGARD it as such are overlooking the fact that Bruce now has strong junior varsity and freshman squads from which to draw next year.

Ladygo is satisfied with the manner in which the Bruce boys are mastering the defensive phase of the game, allowing that they still must pick up many of the basic skills.

Inexperience, more than any other single factor, has prevented the Bulldogs from compiling a better record, and it was never more obvious than last Friday night when they missed an opportunity to upset Southern High School in a game at Oakland.

"We pushed Southern all over the field, but they beat us (26-6) on a couple of situations the boys didn't know how to handle," declared Ladygo Saturday while reviewing the contest in which Bruce had an edge in nearly every statistical category.

The Highlanders picked up two touchdowns on blocked punts and another on a fumble recovery, with a Southern player carrying the free pigskin for long yardage and six points in all three instances.

BOTH OF THE BLOCKED punt scores were engineered by the same duo, Tom Powers doing the blocking and Jim Stewart racing 52 and 50 yards to paydirt.

"Our boys just stood around not knowing what to do until it was too late," moaned Ladygo.

Disastrous occurrences such as these are bound to upset Ladygo, but he can take solace in the fact that the boys will profit from their mistakes and be prepared for similar eventualities in the future.

It would seem that Bruce is stepping out of its class a little ahead of time in taking on Allegany next season.

One local fan cracked that it will be a good chance to see if the new Stadium scoreboard will register past the 100-point figure. The inference here is obvious, but then again, don't be so sure!

SPORT SMALL TALK . . . Both major wire services (AP and UPI) and several Washington newspapers had Frostburg State defeating Gallaudet College, 19-2, last Saturday but Bobcat coach Ron VanRyswyk insists the score was 19-0. It could be that the Bisons spotted themselves a pair of points and didn't let Ron in on it.

Members of the Frostburg State squad and coaching staff stayed overnight in the Capital City and sat in on the Redskins-Cardinals game at D. C. Stadium on Sunday. Washington coach Bill McPeak is certain of the final score of that game. His team lost, 21-7.

The Bobcats found Gallaudet a bit tougher in their second meeting of the season and led only 6-0 at halftime. VanRyswyk credits his team's superior physical conditioning with wearing the home club down in the second half.

Frostburg makes another trip to the Capital City on November 23 for a game with Georgetown University. It will be the only inter-collegiate contest of the season for the Hoyas, and interest among students and alumni could draw a crowd of 4,000 or more to Kehoe Field.

IT WAS BROTHER VERSUS brother last Saturday night at Front Royal, Va., when Romney played John S. Mosby Academy but only one sibling was on the actual field of battle.

Harold Carl, assistant coach at Mosby Academy, was on the sidelines watching his kid brother, Dave, in action as fullback and defensive end for the Pioneers.

HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL players are sometimes accused of "gold bricking" or feigning injury to avoid the action when it gets a little rough, but it's another story altogether with a stalwart gridder from Winchester.

Quarterback Clarence Curry of Winchester's Douglas High scored three early touchdowns, made a quick 36-mile round trip to the Leesburg Hospital to make sure he didn't have a broken collarbone and then came back to score another six-pointer to lead his team to a 45-14 victory over Douglass of Leesburg.

A six-foot-two, 195-pounder, Curry scored on runs of 20, 15 and eight yards before being knocked out of action in the second period.

After getting an O.K. at the hospital, he made the return trek and re-entered the game, this time at halfback. Curry immediately sped 80 yards for a touchdown.

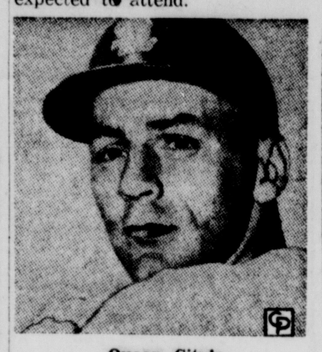
Testimonial Dinner For Dick Groat Set Tonight

Cardinal Star To Be Honored At Country Club

Tommy Powers Is Guest Speaker; Tickets Available

Baseball star and nice guy Richard Morrow (Dick) Groat, Cumberland's favorite unofficial "adopted son," will be honored tonight at a testimonial dinner at the Cumberland Country Club.

The dinner, for which tickets are still available at $10 apiece, is scheduled to begin at 6:30 p. m. following a cocktail hour at 5:30. At least 100 persons are expected to attend.



Queen City's King For A Day

Tonight's affair is by way of paying tribute to the St. Louis Cardinal shortstop who has appeared in Cumberland on numerous occasions for the annual Dapper Dan dinner, to play in baseball and basketball games and as just an ordinary visitor calling on friends.

To Present Gift

Many of the latter will be on hand, and will present "Dandy Dick" with a gift of appreciation. J. Suter Kegg, sports editor of the Cumberland Evening and Sunday Times, will make the presentation.

Toastmaster Clifton Van Roby will introduce featured speaker Tommy Powers, a baseball teammate of Groat's at Duke University who is currently serving as deputy solicitor for the U.S. Department of Labor.

Powers, former all-round athlete at Allegany High School, is the only other scheduled speaker besides the honor guest. Groat, after addressing the assemblage, will preside over an informal question-and-answer session.

Groat is planning to arrive in Cumberland some time this morning, and will participate in a golf match on the CCC links in the afternoon.

Best NL Shortstop

Generally considered the best shortstop in the National League, the 32-year-old native of Swissvale, Pa., broke in with the Pittsburgh Pirates in 1952 and stayed with Bucs until this past season when he was traded to the Cardinals.

Groat appeared in 1,258 games with the Pirates and batted .300 or better in four different seasons. His best year was 1960 when he hit .325 to win the National League batting title.

He was named Most Valuable Player that year after leading the Pirates to their first pennant in 33 years.

In 158 games with St. Louis in 1963, Dick batted .319 and finished in a tie for third place in the National League swat race with Milwaukee's Henry Aaron.

An All-American basketball player with the Duke Blue Devils, Groat scored 1,783 points in 77 games for an average of 23.2 per contest.

Jury May Call Knox's Surgeon

Doctor Says Fight Blow Caused Death

BALTIMORE (UPI)—A Baltimore Grand Jury investigating the boxing death of Ernie Knox will reportedly summon the neurosurgeon who operated on the boxer on the night he died, Oct. 16.

Although subpoenas have not yet been issued, states attorney William O'Donnell said Tuesday that "the grand jury has been interested in hearing from the doctor who attended Knox at the hospital."

The doctor, who requested that his name be withheld, told the Baltimore News - Post recently that Knox died from a blood clot on the left side of his brain.

The doctor told the newspapers, "From the nature of the clot, it was possible to ascertain that it had formed within a matter of hours before the operation. Assuming that nothing happened to bring about his condition after the fight, I would have to say that the injury came as a result of a blow in the fight itself.

"The type of injury sustained," the surgeon continued, "comes from a single blow to the head. And it need not be a heavy blow. It could be a relatively light one."

Tuesday the grand jury heard testimony from Baltimore insurance man Jack Pollack, a former member of the Maryland State Athletic Commission, and from Knox's opponent, Wayne Bethea, and Bethea's manager, Bobby Gleason.

No definite date has been set for the next hearing. It was expected to be early next week.

Memphis State Star Named Back Of Week

Vollmer's Show Rivals Hollywood

NEW YORK (AP)—Memphis State quarterback Russell Vollmer was named Back of the Week by The Associated Press Tuesday for a startling performance that a Hollywood scenario writer would have difficulty duplicating.

Here's the way Hollywood would treat Saturday's hero:

Our hero is knocked out cold during the first half of the game and is taken to a hospital. He soft-pedals his injuries, climbs off the examining table, gets the best wishes of his nurses and speeds back to the packed arena.

It's the second half, now, and our hero's team is losing. He warms up on the side of the field as 32,000 cheers split the air, then enters the game. The offense is bogged down, but our hero leads his team to the winning touchdown in the closing minutes.

It actually happened to Vollmer.

And here's the way it went as he engineered a 17-10 victory over Mississippi State that gave once-tied Memphis State its fifth victory and a shot at its first unbeaten season since 1938:

Vollmer took the opening kickoff and raced 78 yards, setting up the first Memphis State touchdown. A short time later, he returned a punt and was knocked out of bounds, over the teams's bench and onto the running track. He was out cold.

He was rushed to a hospital, where he admitted his back was sore, but said, "I don't give a damn if it hurts. Put a sponge on it and it will be all right."

The X rays proved negative, and after getting the wishes of those ever present nurses, he was driven back to the football field. He returned to action in the fourth quarter and led the drive, capped by Dave Casinelli's one-yard smash, that won for Memphis Stae.

Vollmer's performance earned him the nod over Michigan State's Sherm Lewis, a 150-pound package who proved a one-man gang in a 15-7 upset of Northwestern, ranked ninth in the nation at the time.

Hawks Top Knicks In Overtime Battle

NEW YORK (UPI) —The St. Louis Hawks defeated the New York Knicks, 109-103, in an overtime basketball game at Madison Square Garden Tuesday night after being down, 95-91, with 24 seconds left to play.

Guard John Barnhill who replaced ex-Knick Richie Guerin when he fouled out, lofted two one-handers within 19 seconds to tie the game at 95-95. Then the Hawks scored eight straight points in the overtime to ice the ball game.

Four Hawks fouled out in a rough defensive game. The Knicks led almost the entire second half after taking a 45-42 halftime advantage, despite making only seven of 19 free throws in the first half.

Tom Hoover, who made his debut at center for New York, took 17 rebounds in 32 minutes and scored 16 points. He was one of six Knicks in double figures, led by Len Chappell's 20.

Cards' Back Crow To Undergo Surgery

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — St. Louis Cardinal halfback John David Crow will undergo surgery Wednesday on his re-injured knee, and a Cardinal spokesman said the extent of the injury could not be determined until after surgery.

It was feared Crow will be out for the rest of the season.

Crow damaged his knee in a pre-season game with the Chicago Bears and missed the first four league games. Surgery at that time was not considered necessary. Crow was injured again in last Sunday's Washington Redskin game.

The former Heisman Trophy winner from Texas A and M rejoined the club for its first home game against Pittsburgh two weeks ago. Coach Wally Lemm was bringing Crow along gradually, preferring to keep second year man Bill Triplett in the starting role.

Men's Match Tonight

The Men's Shuffleboard League match between the Purple Heart Club and Sioux Tribe will be staged tonight at Sioux Tribe instead of Thursday night.

Palmer, Nicklaus To Slow Tourney Pace Next Year

Steady Competition Starting To Tell On Both Golfers

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

PARIS (AP) — The week-in and week-out tournament grind is beginning to tell on golfers Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus, and they're going to slow down next year.

That's what both of them said Tuesday before enplaning for home with both the individual and team trophies of the Canada Cup international competition, preparatory to taking off again for Australia.

"For five years, ever since I won my first masters, I have been under constant pressure," said Palmer, the links capitalist from Latrobe, Pa., whose official golf earnings are approaching one-half million dollars.

"I haven't really had any rest, although I've knocked off for a couple of weeks here and there. Every time I tee up I'm expected to win. Believe me, this is a tremendous drain on a man."

Palmer said he is reminded of a remark once made by the funloving Walter Hagen: "In traveling down the highway of life, don't forget to stop and smell the roses."

"I think it's time I smelled a few roses," the 34-year-old Palmer said, with a weary smile.

Nicklaus is only 23 and a touring pro less than two years, but already he is beginning to feel the pressures of constant competition.

"I've been going for 19 weeks without a day's rest," Jack said. "In those 19 weeks, I have seen my two children for just half a day on two occasions.

"I don't like this kind of existence. My family is too important to me. I'm definitely going to slow down, starting next year."

Palmer and Nicklaus, locked in a battle for No. 1 professional golf honors, don't intend to curtail their activities as sharply as have players like Ben Hogan and Sam Snead, but they say they do intend to relax their schedules.

Packers Claim LA's Bratkowski

Vet Gives Champs Quarterback Help

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — The National Football League champion Green Bay Packers bought themselves some quarterback insurance Tuesday against a delay in the healing of Bart Starr's broken hand. They claimed Zeke Bratkowski on waivers from the Los Angeles Rams.

Bratkowski, a 31-year-old veteran of eight NFL seasons, will relieve John Roach, the Packers' No. 2 signal caller, if needed.

The Packers offered no comment on the deal, but there were some obvious conclusions. Since they put defensive back Howie Williams on waivers to make room for Bratkowski rather than putting Starr on the injured list, Starr's hand apparently is expected to be ready in less than four weeks.

In any event, Bratkowski may be ready for action reasonably soon. He spent five years with the Chicago Bears and three with the Rams, where he shared the Ram quarterback job this season with Roman Gabriel and Terry Baker until Gabriel took charge the last two games. So far this season, Bratkowski has thrown 82 passes, completing 45 for 471 yards and three touchdowns.

Maryland-Bred Test Features Laurel Opening

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — Laurel Race Course opens Wednesday with a test for Maryland-bred horses and closes Nov. 11 with a race for champions from six nations.

Wednesday's feature race is the 7-furlong Maryland Futurity, a $23,000-added purse for 2-year-olds.

Favored in an eight-horse field is Hussar, owned by Mrs. Augustus Riggs. Hussar has won three of his five starts, and finished second and fourth in his other two.

Another highly rated probable is Spiral, winner of a division of the Bowie Breeders' Stakes. Grey Scandal, winner of the Walden Stakes, is also a probable starter.

Eleven racing days later Laurel's fall meeting closes with the $150,000 Washington D.C. International, a 1½-mile race on the turf.

Invitations to the International have been accepted by the owners of Kelso and Mongo of the United States, Christmas Island of Ireland, Imperial of Hungary, England's Espresso, Gudron and Bryansk of Russia, and Nycros and Misti of France.

Peters Is Best Hitting Pitcher

NEW YORK (AP)—They did not have to use pinch-hitters very often for pitchers Gary Peters of the Chicago White Sox, Bob Gibson of St. Louis and Camilo Pascual of Minnesota in 1963.

The three were just as liable to get on base as some regulars.

Peters, a rookie, had the highest batting average among the major league pitchers, .256 with 21 hits in

Jury May Call Knox's Surgeon

Doctor Says Fight Blow Caused Death

BALTIMORE (UPI)—A Baltimore Grand Jury investigating the boxing death of Ernie Knox will reportedly summon the neurosurgeon who operated on the boxer on the night he died, Oct. 16.

Although subpoenas have not yet been issued, states attorney William O'Donnell said Tuesday that "the grand jury has been interested in hearing from the doctor who attended Knox at the hospital."

The doctor, who requested that his name be withheld, told the Baltimore News - Post recently that Knox died from a blood clot on the left side of his brain.

The doctor told the newspapers, "From the nature of the clot, it was possible to ascertain that it had formed within a matter of hours before the operation. Assuming that nothing happened to bring about his condition after the fight, I would have to say that the injury came as a result of a blow in the fight itself.

"The type of injury sustained," the surgeon continued, "comes from a single blow to the head. And it need not be a heavy blow. It could be a relatively light one."

Tuesday the grand jury heard testimony from Baltimore insurance man Jack Pollack, a former member of the Maryland State Athletic Commission, and from Knox's opponent, Wayne Bethea, and Bethea's manager, Bobby Gleason.

No definite date has been set for the next hearing. It was expected to be early next week.

Memphis State Star Named Back Of Week

Vollmer's Show Rivals Hollywood

NEW YORK (AP)—Memphis State quarterback Russell Vollmer was named Back of the Week by The Associated Press Tuesday for a startling performance that a Hollywood scenario writer would have difficulty duplicating.

Here's the way Hollywood would treat Saturday's hero:

Our hero is knocked out cold during the first half of the game and is taken to a hospital. He soft-pedals his injuries, climbs off the examining table, gets the best wishes of his nurses and speeds back to the packed arena.

It's the second half, now, and our hero's team is losing. He warms up on the side of the field as 32,000 cheers split the air, then enters the game. The offense is bogged down, but our hero leads his team to the winning touchdown in the closing minutes.

It actually happened to Vollmer.

And here's the way it went as he engineered a 17-10 victory over Mississippi State that gave once-tied Memphis State its fifth victory and a shot at its first unbeaten season since 1938:

Vollmer took the opening kickoff and raced 78 yards, setting up the first Memphis State touchdown. A short time later, he returned a punt and was knocked out of bounds, over the teams's bench and onto the running track. He was out cold.

He was rushed to a hospital, where he admitted his back was sore, but said, "I don't give a damn if it hurts. Put a sponge on it and it will be all right."

The X rays proved negative, and after getting the wishes of those ever present nurses, he was driven back to the football field. He returned to action in the fourth quarter and led the drive, capped by Dave Casinelli's one-yard smash, that won for Memphis Stae.

Vollmer's performance earned him the nod over Michigan State's Sherm Lewis, a 150-pound package who proved a one-man gang in a 15-7 upset of Northwestern, ranked ninth in the nation at the time.

Hawks Top Knicks In Overtime Battle

NEW YORK (UPI) —The St. Louis Hawks defeated the New York Knicks, 109-103, in an overtime basketball game at Madison Square Garden Tuesday night after being down, 95-91, with 24 seconds left to play.

Guard John Barnhill who replaced ex-Knick Richie Guerin when he fouled out, lofted two one-handers within 19 seconds to tie the game at 95-95. Then the Hawks scored eight straight points in the overtime to ice the ball game.

Four Hawks fouled out in a rough defensive game. The Knicks led almost the entire second half after taking a 45-42 halftime advantage, despite making only seven of 19 free throws in the first half.

Tom Hoover, who made his debut at center for New York, took 17 rebounds in 32 minutes and scored 16 points. He was one of six Knicks in double figures, led by Len Chappell's 20.

Cards' Back Crow To Undergo Surgery

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — St. Louis Cardinal halfback John David Crow will undergo surgery Wednesday on his re-injured knee, and a Cardinal spokesman said the extent of the injury could not be determined until after surgery.

It was feared Crow will be out for the rest of the season.

Crow damaged his knee in a pre-season game with the Chicago Bears and missed the first four league games. Surgery at that time was not considered necessary. Crow was injured again in last Sunday's Washington Redskin game.

The former Heisman Trophy winner from Texas A and M rejoined the club for its first home game against Pittsburgh two weeks ago. Coach Wally Lemm was bringing Crow along gradually, preferring to keep second year man Bill Triplett in the starting role.

Palmer, Nicklaus To Slow Tourney Pace Next Year

Steady Competition Starting To Tell On Both Golfers

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

PARIS (AP) — The week-in and week-out tournament grind is beginning to tell on golfers Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus, and they're going to slow down next year.

That's what both of them said Tuesday before enplaning for home with both the individual and team trophies of the Canada Cup international competition, preparatory to taking off again for Australia.

"For five years, ever since I won my first masters, I have been under constant pressure," said Palmer, the links capitalist from Latrobe, Pa., whose official golf earnings are approaching one-half million dollars.

"I haven't really had any rest, although I've knocked off for a couple of weeks here and there. Every time I tee up I'm expected to win. Believe me, this is a tremendous drain on a man."

Palmer said he is reminded of a remark once made by the fun-loving Walter Hagen: "In traveling down the highway of life, don't forget to stop and smell the roses."

"I think it's time I smelled a few roses," the 34-year-old Palmer said, with a weary smile.

Nicklaus is only 23 and a touring pro less than two years, but already he is beginning to feel the pressures of constant competition.

"I've been going for 19 weeks without a day's rest," Jack said. "In those 19 weeks, I have seen my two children for just half a day on two occasions.

"I don't like this kind of existence. My family is too important to me. I'm definitely going to slow down, starting next year."

Palmer and Nicklaus, locked in a battle for No. 1 professional golf honors, don't intend to curtail their activities as sharply as have players like Ben Hogan and Sam Snead, but they say they do intend to relax their schedules.

Packers Claim LA's Bratkowski

Vet Gives Champs Quarterback Help

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — The National Football League champion Green Bay Packers bought themselves some quarterback insurance Tuesday against a delay in the healing of Bart Starr's broken hand. They claimed Zeke Bratkowski on waivers from the Los Angeles Rams.

Bratkowski, a 31-year-old veteran of eight NFL seasons, will relieve John Roach, the Packers' No. 2 signal caller, if needed.

The Packers offered no comment on the deal, but there were some obvious conclusions. Since they put defensive back Howie Williams on waivers to make room for Bratkowski rather than putting Starr on the injured list, Starr's hand apparently is expected to be ready in less than four weeks.

In any event, Bratkowski may be ready for action reasonably soon. He spent five years with the Chicago Bears and three with the Rams, where he shared the Ram quarterback job this season with Roman Gabriel and Terry Baker until Gabriel took charge the last two games. So far this season, Bratkowski has thrown 82 passes, completing 45 for 471 yards and three touchdowns.

Maryland-Bred Test Features Laurel Opening

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — Laurel Race Course opens Wednesday with a test for Maryland-bred horses and closes Nov. 11 with a race for champions from six nations.

Wednesday's feature race is the 7-furlong Maryland Futurity, a $23,000-added purse for 2-year-olds.

Favored in an eight-horse field is Hussar, owned by Mrs. Augustus Riggs. Hussar has won three of his five starts, and finished second and fourth in his other two.

Another highly rated probable is Spiral, winner of a division of the Bowie Breeders' Stakes. Grey Scandal, winner of the Walden Stakes, is also a probable starter.

Eleven racing days later Laurel's fall meeting closes with the $150,000 Washington D.C. International, a 1½-mile race on the turf.

Invitations to the International have been accepted by the owners of Kelso and Mongo of the United States, Christmas Island of Ireland, Imperial of Hungary, England's Espresso, Gudron and Bryansk of Russia, and Nycros and Misti of France.

Peters Is Best Hitting Pitcher

NEW YORK (AP)—They did not have to use pinch-hitters very often for pitchers Gary Peters of the Chicago White Sox, Bob Gibson of St. Louis and Camilo Pascual of Minnesota in 1963.

The three were just as liable to get on base as some regulars.

Peters, a rookie, had the highest batting

College Head, Student Patch Up Troubles

Hardesty, Howie Give Statements

Joint statements were issued yesterday at Frostburg State College by Jerry Howie, who resigned over the weekend as president of the Student Government, and R. Bowen Hardesty, president of the college.

Mr. Howie earlier had said he resigned his elective post because of "pressure exerted by President Hardesty." Mr. Howie's statement is as follows:

"At a meeting between President Hardesty (and me) it was decided to issue joint statements with the purpose of clarifying my personal status as a member of the student body at Frostburg State College.

"This has been done to my satisfaction. I am a member of Frostburg State College in good standing. President Hardesty and I concur in the belief that FSC is an institution where each individual can benefit to the highest by actively working 'with diligence' toward the same goals and by the same means to implement the College and the handbook for students and the Pathfinder."

President Hardesty's view is as follows:

"The incident of Jerry Howie attempting to take a volume of ice cream from the State of Maryland was relatively insignificant in terms of finances. The principle of the act was significant.

"This was an illustration of an act related to Jerry Howie last week in an effort to help him face up to reality in several major areas of operation this academic year.

"Jerry Howie has advised he will not continue to serve as president of Student Government. He will not be placed on probation by the administration for any acts whatsoever. He has assured the administration of the college that he will develop himself into a real leader. In fact, everyone on campus is urged to continue as a genuine friend to Jerry Howie."

Dan's Mountain Fire Burns Eight Acres

A fire of undetermined origin burned about eight acres of woodland on Dan's Mountain west of Danville yesterday before being brought under control, according to District Forester W. A. C. Irwin.

The blaze was discovered shortly before noon and was under control by mid-afternoon.

Mr. Irwin himself responded to the fire along with Senior Forest Supervisor Brook Bodkin, Forest Warden Allen Holt Sr., Floyd Custer, superintendent of Green Ridge Forest, and Rhesa Bowman, mechanic at Green Ridge, who had a 1000 gallon tank truck with him.

Boys from the forestry camps at Green Ridge and Lonaconing also responded and were relieved late yesterday by other boys from the forestry camp on Meadow Mountain. While Mr. Irwin was stopped along U. S. Route 220 directing men to the fire, William H. Johnson, former district forester now assistant state forester, came along en route from Garrett County back to Annapolis.

Another fire, which occurred Monday at Dutch Hollow near Mt. Savage, burned about six acres before being brought under control.

Although there were snow showers yesterday in Garrett County and some rain elsewhere in this district, Mr. Irwin cautioned that the fire danger still is high. He urged all persons going into the woods to use caution.

Smoked Fish Supplies Checked

Sanitarians from the Allegany County Health Department are checking local and county food distributors and markets for supplies of smoked fish in packages or bulk which have been produced or processed in the Great Lakes area.

The supplies are to be removed from the shelves and detained according to Dr. John J. Janney, chief of Division of Epidemiology, State Department of Health.

Dr. Janney said the order does not apply to smoked fish in cans or jars.

Tawes Asks Board To Study Issues

R. Bowen Hardesty, president of Frostburg State College, reportedly met yesterday afternoon with the Student Senate and the executive council of Student Government of the college.

No details of the meeting were reported but it was learned that Mr. Hardesty took a tape recorder to the session. The president of the college was not available for comment last night.

Yesterday, Gov. Tawes said he plans to ask the state's new College Board of Trustees to determine whether a dispute between some faculty members and Mr. Hardesty merits an investigation.

William L. Wilson, local attorney who is chairman of the board, said last night he did not plan to call a meeting of the board until some official request or complaint is made to the board. He added that when and if he does receive specific information he immediately will call a board meeting on the Frostburg matter.

Holland Criticizes

Edwin V. Holland, president of the Frostburg Chapter of the American Association of University Professors, said yesterday that "unless there are drastic changes in the near future" Frostburg State College will cease to function effectively as an institution of higher education.

Mr. Holland said he was speaking as a faculty member and not as head of the AAUP in Frostburg.

He said the faculty has no real voice in the selection of subject matter in courses and no voice in the educational policies at the college, although Mr. Hardesty "consults informally with some members of the faculty."

Mr. Holland also said that in the past department chairmen were elected, but recently Mr. Hardesty has been appointing these chairmen without consulting members of the various departments. He also said the Faculty Council for Policy Development, which is made up of 10 members, has four members who represent the administration, three appointed, and three elected by the faculty.

Also cited by Mr. Holland was the charge that Mr. Hardesty does not consult the entire faculty on matters which may directly affect the educational policies of the college. He concluded by saying there is a wide divergence between the principles of AAUP and the practices of the college administration.

Reporter Gets Brushoff

A reporter from the Cumberland Evening Times has been trying to reach Mr. Hardesty for the past several days for an interview concerning the mounting tension at the college over the administration's handling of student and faculty relations.

On several occasions over the weekend Mr. Hardesty said he would not grant the interview and any statement he would have would be in a press release.

However, Monday afternoon the reporter was contacted and was told Mr. Hardesty would give an interview yesterday morning. But when the reporter arrived Mr. Hardesty already was meeting with Dr. W. S. Fuller of the University of Indiana, who is conducting, on state appointment, a space utilization study of the Frostburg campus.

Mr. Hardesty told the reporter he was too late for a private interview and the reporter did not choose to ask the president a list of prepared questions with the entire administration and a visitor in attendance.

College Needs Are Studied

Dr. Fuller yesterday began a tour of all college classrooms in an attempt to establish the college's physical needs, what buildings need to be razed, which need repairs, and which need major renovation.

Mr. Hardesty said that if anything gives the college a problem in accreditation in the fall of 1964, it will be a lack of space for faculty members to conduct on-campus research.

Dr. Dorothy G. Howard, senior member of the teaching faculty, said Monday the college may face accreditation problems next year

Health Dept. Urges Measles Immunization

New Vaccine Recommended

The use of vaccines against measles recently licensed by the Public Health Service has been recommended by the State Health Department.

Dr. Arthur F. Jones, acting deputy state health officer for Allegany County, said every child over nine months of age should have been vaccinated by next March when the incidence of measles is high.

The vaccine is presently generally available through private physicians.

Measles is caused by a known virus and from this virus two types of vaccine have been prepared, the live attenuated measles virus vaccine and the inactivated or killed measles virus vaccine.

Vaccination with the live attenuated vaccine virus with gamma globulin administered simultaneously is the method of choice for immunizing children. The State Health Department recommends the use of this vaccine.

Measles due to its high communicability has always been the most common of childhood diseases and one which at times is followed by severe complications. In fact frequency of complications results in a mortality rate of over 400 deaths a year in the United States. The high mortality rate is among infants and very young children.

In consideration of the high attack rate among the lower age groups immunization efforts should be directed to children from nine months up who give no history of measles. Dr. Jones said. Vaccination of adults is rarely necessary.

The most serious complication of measles is encephalitis, an inflammation of the brain which causes mental crippling as well as death. Other serious complications include pneumonia, deafness, infection of middle ear, visual defects, kidney defects, possible meningitis and activation of arrested tuberculosis.

Dr. Jones said licensing of the vaccines marks another milestone in the progress of communicable disease control. Measles should now take its place in the depleted morbidity ranks of diphtheria, pertussis and poliomyelitis, he pointed out.

Judge Defers Zoning Ruling

Associate Judge W. Earl Cobey took under advisement yesterday afternoon in Allegany County Circuit Court an appeal from a decision of the City Board of Zoning Appeals.

Eugene D. Weber and Margaret Weber, his wife, 223 Frost Avenue, May 29 had appealed the decision which had granted a use permit to Ralph E. Klavuhn to turn trucks around on a lot which he had blacktopped on Frost Avenue.

Judge Cobey commented from the bench that the opinion of the Board of Zoning Appeals gave no reason for granting the permit. He intimated that he was inclined to remand it back to the board for a new hearing.

Attorney John M. Robb represented the Webers. Attorney Fred H. Anderson represented Mr. Klavuhn, who operates a moving and storage business at 633 Yale Street. City Attorney Hugh A. McMullen represented the zoning board.

Three Fires Checked Here

City firemen answered three calls yesterday including one in which a small shed burned down at the city dump.

Firemen from South End answered a call at 6:14 p. m. and went to the city dump road where the shed had burned and collapsed by the time they arrived.

The fire was reportedly started from sparks from the dump. The shed was used as a place to get warm during the cold weather, firemen were told.

The pumper from Central station went to the vicinity of the First National Bank, corner of Baltimore and George streets, where an insulator on a pole caught fire about 5:30 p. m.

Firemen from Central and East Side stations went to the intersection of Baltimore Avenue and Front Street where a car fire was extinguished yesterday morning.

The two companies responded when Box 53 was pulled about 7 a. m.

Leaf Collections Slated After Rains

The Street Department has been getting numerous calls concerning the collection of leaves, Street Commissioner Lucile Roeder reported yesterday.

Yesterday's gusty winds brought tons of leaves down to add to the problem.

Picking up leaves when they are dry is a difficult and time consuming job and the department has asked residents to pile leaves into piles to await collections when the leaves are wet.

As soon as a soaking rain arrives, the department will try to pick up all leaves on days the power sweeper is scheduled.

Gusty Winds Affect Street Light Circuits

The heavy gusts of wind which hit the Queen City at dusk yesterday caused mechanical difficulties which knocked out three street light circuits and caused scattered power trouble here.

Edward L. Ewald, district manager for the Potomac Edison Company, said line crews had restored all known trouble shortly before 9 p.m.

The most dramatic incident occurred on South George Street when an arrestor burned up and affected street lights on South George, South Centre and South Mechanic streets.

Street lights in the Virginia Avenue, Fifth Street and Laing Avenue were affected when a fuse went out.

On Baltimore Avenue, the high winds caused a break in a conductor which affected street light service in the Baltimore Avenue and East Side section.

Season's First Snow Reported In Garrett Co.

Residents of the district yesterday were reminded that winter is not too far off when Maryland's first snow of the season fell in Garrett County and cold rain blew into Cumberland during the afternoon.

The temperature is expected to dip into the 20s in Garrett County this morning and elsewhere in the state the temperature is expected to range in the 30s and 40s in the early morning hours

The winter season will bow in on December 22.

Bookmobile Carport Plan Is Opposed

Charles Catherman Protests Building

Charles S. Catherman Jr., who lives at 27 Prospect Square, appeared at yesterday's meeting of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners to protest construction of a carport for the bookmobile at the rear of the Allegany County Library.

Ever since the bookmobile was placed in operation it has been parked at nights at the rear of the library annex with no protection in all kinds of weather.

Mr. Catherman was told that any such construction would be undertaken by the County Library Board and not by the county commissioners.

The county commissioners gave permanent status to Mrs. Grace P. Williams, laundry worker, Class 13, at the County Infirmary, as of November 1. She was recommended for permanent status by Earl D. Grim, superintendent, having completed her six months of probation satisfactorily.

Bids will be accepted by the county commissioners until 9:30 a. m. November 15 for a new eight-cyclinder, two-door deluxe sedan in the medium price and weight classification. The price will include trade-in on a 1960 Dodge. This car will be used by the sheriff's office.

Miss Mary P. Wise, county home demonstration agent, received permission from the county commissioners to spend $421 for new equipment for her office.

C. G. Smith, county Civil Defense director, submitted a report. He wrote that volunteer firemen from District 16 at North Branch had completed a course in radiology training and monitoring equipment has been placed there.

Mr. Smith and Dr. Leland B. Ransom recently attended a two-day Civil Defense meeting in Pikesville. Federal and state personnel attended.

Rev. Vernon I. Naugle, pastor of St. Luke's Lutheran Church, and William Seiler, secretary, sent a letter to the county commisisoners opposing any plan to place a county garage on county-owned property in Welch Addition. The letter said that Frederick Street should be maintained as an essentially residential street.

Lieutenant See said there was about $5 in the billfold as well as licenses and other cards and papers. Miss Imgrund is concerned with the return of a new pair of eye glasses which were in the purse, he said.

"At a meeting between President Hardesty (and me) it was decided to issue joint statements with the purpose of clarifying my personal status as a member of the student body at Frostburg State College.

"This has been done to my satisfaction. I am a member of Frostburg State College in good standing. President Hardesty and I concur in the belief that FSC is an institution where each individual can benefit to the highest by actively working 'with diligence' toward the same goals and by the same means to implement the College and the handbook for students and the Pathfinder."

President Hardesty's view is as follows:

"The incident of Jerry Howie attempting to take a volume of ice cream from the State of Maryland was relatively insignificant in terms of finances. The principle of the act was significant.

"This was an illustration of an act related to Jerry Howie last week in an effort to help him face up to reality in several major areas of operation this academic year.

"Jerry Howie has advised he will not continue to serve as president of Student Government. He will not be placed on probation by the administration for any acts whatsoever. He has assured the administration of the college that he will develop himself into a real leader. In fact, everyone on campus is urged to continue as a genuine friend to Jerry Howie."

Dan's Mountain Fire Burns Eight Acres

A fire of undetermined origin burned about eight acres of woodland on Dan's Mountain west of Danville yesterday before being brought under control, according to District Forester W. A. C. Irwin.

The blaze was discovered shortly before noon and was under control by mid-afternoon.

Mr. Irwin himself responded to the fire along with Senior Forest Supervisor Brook Bodkin, Forest Warden Allen Holt Sr., Floyd Custer, superintendent of Green Ridge Forest, and Rhesa Bowman, mechanic at Green Ridge, who had a 1000 gallon tank truck with him.

Boys from the forestry camps at Green Ridge and Lonaconing also responded and were relieved late yesterday by other boys from the forestry camp on Meadow Mountain. While Mr. Irwin was stopped along U. S. Route 220 directing men to the fire, William H. Johnson, former district forester now assistant state forester, came along en route from Garrett County back to Annapolis.

Another fire, which occurred Monday at Dutch Hollow near Mt. Savage, burned about six acres before being brought under control.

Although there were snow showers yesterday in Garrett County and some rain elsewhere in this district, Mr. Irwin cautioned that the fire danger still is high. He urged all persons going into the woods to use caution.

Smoked Fish Supplies Checked

Dr. Janney said the order does not apply to smoked fish in cans or jars.

Hardesty, Students Confer

Tawes Asks Board To Study Issues

R. Bowen Hardesty, president of Frostburg State College, reportedly met yesterday afternoon with the Student Senate and the executive council of Student Government of the college.

No details of the meeting were reported but it was learned that Mr. Hardesty took a tape recorder to the session. The president of the college was not available for comment last night.

Yesterday, Gov. Tawes said he plans to ask the state's new College Board of Trustees to determine whether a dispute between some faculty members and Mr. Hardesty merits an investigation.

William L. Wilson, local attorney who is chairman of the board, said last night he did not plan to call a meeting of the board until some official request or complaint is made to the board. He added that when and if he does receive specific information he immediately will call a board meeting on the Frostburg matter.

Holland Criticizes

Edwin V. Holland, president of the Frostburg Chapter of the American Association of University Professors, said yesterday that "unless there are drastic changes in the near future" Frostburg State College will cease to function effectively as an institution of higher education.

Mr. Holland said he was speaking as a faculty member and not as head of the AAUP in Frostburg.

He said the faculty has no real voice in the selection of subject matter in courses and no voice in the educational policies at the college, although Mr. Hardesty "consults informally with some members of the faculty."

Mr. Holland also said that in the past department chairmen were elected, but recently Mr. Hardesty has been appointing these chairmen without consulting members of the various departments. He also said the Faculty Council for Policy Development, which is made up of 10 members, has four members who represent the administration, three appointed, and three elected by the faculty.

Also cited by Mr. Holland was the charge that Mr. Hardesty does not consult the entire faculty on matters which may directly affect the educational policies of the college. He concluded by saying there is a wide divergence between the principles of AAUP and the practices of the college administration.

Reporter Gets Brushoff

A reporter from the Cumberland Evening Times has been trying to reach Mr. Hardesty for the past several days for an interview concerning the mounting tension at the college over the administration's handling of student and faculty relations.

On several occasions over the weekend Mr. Hardesty said he would not grant the interview and any statement he would have would be in a press release.

However, Monday afternoon the reporter was contacted and was told Mr. Hardesty would give an interview yesterday morning. But when the reporter arrived Mr. Hardesty already was meeting with Dr. W. S. Fuller of the University of Indiana, who is conducting, on state appointment, a space utilization study of the Frostburg campus.

Mr. Hardesty told the reporter he was too late for a private interview and the reporter did not choose to ask the president a list of prepared questions with the entire administration and a visitor in attendance.

College Needs Are Studied

Dr. Fuller yesterday began a tour of all college classrooms in an attempt to establish the college's physical needs, what buildings need to be razed, which need repairs, and which need major renovation.

Mr. Hardesty said that if anything gives the college a problem in accreditation in the fall of 1964, it will be a lack of space for faculty members to conduct on-campus research.

Dr. Dorothy G. Howard, senior member of the teaching faculty, said Monday the college may face accreditation problems next year

Health Dept. Urges Measles Immunization

New Vaccine Recommended

The use of vaccines against measles recently licensed by the Public Health Service has been recommended by the State Health Department.

Dr. Arthur F. Jones, acting deputy state health officer for Allegany County, said every child over nine months of age should have been vaccinated by next March when the incidence of measles is high.

The vaccine is presently generally available through private physicians.

Measles is caused by a known virus and from this virus two types of vaccine have been prepared, the live attenuated measles virus vaccine and the inactivated or killed measles virus vaccine.

Vaccination with the live attenuated vaccine virus with gamma globulin administered simultaneously is the method of choice for immunizing children. The State Health Department recommends the use of this vaccine.

Measles due to its high communicability has always been the most common of childhood diseases and one which at times is followed by severe complications. In fact frequency of complications results in a mortality rate of over 400 deaths a year in the United States. The high mortality rate is among infants and very young children.

In consideration of the high attack rate among the lower age groups immunization efforts should be directed to children from nine months up who give no history of measles. Dr. Jones said. Vaccination of adults is rarely necessary.

The most serious complication of measles is encephalitis, an inflammation of the brain which causes mental crippling as well as death. Other serious complications include pneumonia, deafness, infection of middle ear, visual defects, kidney defects, possible meningitis and activation of arrested tuberculosis.

Dr. Jones said licensing of the vaccines marks another milestone in the progress of communicable disease control. Measles should now take its place in the depleted morbidity ranks of diphtheria, pertussis and poliomyelitis, he pointed out.

Judge Defers Zoning Ruling

Associate Judge W. Earl Cobey took under advisement yesterday afternoon in Allegany County Circuit Court an appeal from a decision of the City Board of Zoning Appeals.

Eugene D. Weber and Margaret Weber, his wife, 223 Frost Avenue, May 29 had appealed the decision which had granted a use permit to Ralph E. Klavuhn to turn trucks around on a lot which he had blacktopped on Frost Avenue.

Judge Cobey commented from the bench that the opinion of the Board of Zoning Appeals gave no reason for granting the permit. He intimated that he was inclined to remand it back to the board for a new hearing.

Attorney John M. Robb represented the Webers. Attorney Fred H. Anderson represented Mr. Klavuhn, who operates a moving and storage business at 633 Yale Street. City Attorney Hugh A. McMullen represented the zoning board.

Three Fires Checked Here

City firemen answered three calls yesterday including one in which a small shed burned down at the city dump.

Firemen from South End answered a call at 6:14 p. m. and went to the city dump road where the shed had burned and collapsed by the time they arrived.

The fire was reportedly started from sparks from the dump. The shed was used as a place to get warm during the cold weather, firemen were told.

The pumper from Central station went to the vicinity of the First National Bank, corner of Baltimore and George streets, where an insulator on a pole caught fire about 5:30 p. m.

Firemen from Central and East Side stations went to the intersection of Baltimore Avenue and Front Street where a car fire was extinguished yesterday morning.

The two companies responded when Box 53 was pulled about 7 a. m.

Leaf Collections Slated After Rains

The Street Department has been getting numerous calls concerning the collection of leaves, Street Commissioner Lucile Roeder reported yesterday.

Yesterday's gusty winds brought tons of leaves down to add to the problem.

Picking up leaves when they are dry is a difficult and time consuming job and the department has asked residents to pile leaves into piles to await collections when the leaves are wet.

As soon as a soaking rain arrives, the department will try to pick up all leaves on days the power sweeper is scheduled.

Gusty Winds Affect Street Light Circuits

The heavy gusts of wind which hit the Queen City at dusk yesterday caused mechanical difficulties which knocked out three street light circuits and caused scattered power trouble here.

Edward L. Ewald, district manager for the Potomac Edison Company, said line crews had restored all known trouble shortly before 9 p.m.

The most dramatic incident occurred on South George Street when an arrestor burned up and affected street lights on South George, South Centre and South Mechanic streets.

Street lights in the Virginia Avenue, Fifth Street and Laing Avenue were affected when a fuse went out.

On Baltimore Avenue, the high winds caused a break in a conductor which affected street light service in the Baltimore Avenue and East Side section.

Season's First Snow Reported In Garrett Co.

Residents of the district yesterday were reminded that winter is not too far off when Maryland's first snow of the season fell in Garrett County and cold rain blew into Cumberland during the afternoon.

The temperature is expected to dip into the 20s in Garrett County this morning and elsewhere in the state the temperature is expected to range in the 30s and 40s in the early morning hours.

The winter season will bow in on December 22.

Bookmobile Carport Plan Is Opposed

Charles Catherman Protests Building

Charles S. Catherman Jr., who lives at 27 Prospect Square, appeared at yesterday's meeting of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners to protest construction of a carport for the bookmobile at the rear of the Allegany County Library.

Ever since the bookmobile was placed in operation it has been parked at nights at the rear of the library annex with no protection in all kinds of weather.

Mr. Catherman was told that any such construction would be undertaken by the County Library Board and not by the county commissioners.

The county commissioners gave permanent status to Mrs. Grace P. Williams, laundry worker, Class 13, at the County Infirmary, as of November 1. She was recommended for permanent status by Earl D. Grim, superintendent, having completed her six months of probation satisfactorily.

Bids will be accepted by the county commissioners until 9:30 a. m. November 15 for a new eight-cyclinder, two-door deluxe sedan in the medium price and weight classification. The price will include trade-in on a 1960 Dodge. This car will be used by the sheriff's office.

Miss Mary P. Wise, county home demonstration agent, received permission from the county commissioners to spend $421 for new equipment for her office.

C. G. Smith, county Civil Defense director, submitted a report. He wrote that volunteer firemen from District 16 at North Branch had completed a course in radiology training and monitoring equipment has been placed there.

Mr. Smith and Dr. Leland B. Ransom recently attended a two-day Civil Defense meeting in Pikesville. Federal and state personnel attended.

Rev. Vernon I. Naugle, pastor of St. Luke's Lutheran Church, and William Seiler, secretary, sent a letter to the county commisisoners opposing any plan to place a county garage on county-owned property in Welch Addition. The letter said that Frederick Street should be maintained as an essentially residential street.

Lieutenant See said there was about $5 in the billfold as well as licenses and other cards and papers. Miss Imgrund is concerned with the return of a new pair of eye glasses which were in the purse, he said.
